Apollo, Soyuz on Catch-up Course

HOUSTON (UPI) — Russia's two Soyuz cosmonauts moved into a higher orbit today to wait for three Americans, trailing a thousand miles behind, to catch them Thursday for a union 136 miles over Germany. A minor mechanical problem faced the Americans when they awakened to a strawberry breakfast.

The flagships of the two space powers circled the world every hour and a half in the second day of history's first international manned spaceflight.

Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov gunned their 15,000-pound spaceship at 8:46 a.m. EDT into a near perfect assembly orbit ranging from 138 to 140 miles high.

"The engine fired for 21 seconds," Leonov reported. "Everything on board is in order."

Apollo astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton slept several hours later than the Russians and began their day when Houston control radioed up the strains of "Wake Up Sunshine."

"That was a pleasant wakeup," said Slayton.

He reported a few minutes later, "We have a strawberry colored spacecraft," explaining that he was eating strawberries for breakfast.

"Spill much?" asked ground communicator Robert Crippen.

"It doesn't take much up here," Slayton replied.

Then Crippen told the astronauts: "Your friends just finished a circ (circularization) burn and they are in orbit waiting for you."

One of the first jobs for the Americans was to remove a mechanical stainless steel probe which they couldn't get out of the docking tunnel earlier because some wires had moved out of position. The probe was used to clasp docking latches when the Apollo hooked up to its new docking module Tuesday.

Flight controllers devised a "very simple" procedure to remove the device and the problem was considered inconsequential.

Soviet flight controllers nevertheless followed the situation closely. Controller Viktor Blagov said in Moscow officials felt "some concern" because if the probe could not be removed from the tunnel, the two crews would not be able to transfer between spacecraft after linking.

The main catchup maneuvers begin Thursday morning. The Americans will quickly overtake their Russian colleagues and rendezvous over South America shortly before noon EDT.

The two ships are scheduled to come together at 12:15 p.m. EDT, when Apollo's new docking module clasps the nose of Soyuz over Germany. The historic handshake in space will come three hours later when Stafford slithers through the cylindrical docking module and meets Leonov in the hatchway of Soyuz. The ships will be linked 44 hours.

The two space crews, speaking their native tongues when talking to their control centers in Moscow and Houston, will speak each other's language when they get together. This is to slow their talk so the other crew will better understand them.

The pilots started out Tuesday from time zones eight hours apart. As a result, the cosmonauts were eating dinner when the astronauts had breakfast. Leonov and Kubasov went to sleep three hours before the Americans Tuesday night. But by Thursday, the spacemen will be on the same time schedules.

Egypt's Refusal of UN Mandate Draws Warning From Israel

By United Press International

Israel warned today that Egypt's decision not to renew the mandate of the United Nations Emergency Force separating Israeli and Egyptian troops in the Sinai desert could endanger progress already made toward peace.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said the Egyptian decision had created a "serious and dangerous" situation in the Middle East and that he was mobilizing diplomatic strength to deal with it.

Secretary of State Kissinger rules out U.S. involvement in Sinai Desert as a buffer between Israel and Egypt. Story page 3.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi said today the U.N. force, called UNEF, is stationed on Egyptian territory and cannot remain there except with Egypt's approval.

But Egyptian government sources said Egypt has no plan to ask for its removal despite Cairo's decision against consenting to a renewal of the force's mandate scheduled to expire on Thursday next week. That meant the U.N. force could stay even without a mandate.

Fahmi, who announced the decision at a news conference Tuesday night, made a new statement to the government's Middle East news agency today commenting on Israel's reaction to the Egyptian refusal.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, in a speech to the Knesset (parliament) in Jerusalem, said Egypt must recognize a continued U.N. peace-keeping role in the Sinai so as not to endanger progress already made toward peace.

"Israel is carrying out its obligations according to the separation of forces agreement with Egypt on the basis of mutuality," Rabin said. "If Egypt is interested in not harming this agreement it too must honor the existence and authority of the U.N. forces which are an integral part of the separation of forces agreement."

The separation of forces agreement between the two countries was signed in January of last year, three months after the 1973 Middle East war.

Rabin also said the current negotiations on a new interim peace accord that would supersede the separation of forces agreement with Egypt are complicated by Israel's evolving relations with the United States.

In its relations with Washington, the prime minister said, Israel is not "accepting dictates from the great power," but instead is involved in "joint discussions, mutual thinking and an effort to convince."

"The United States does not approach Israel to accept orders and Israel is not a country which is used to accepting them," he said.

Waldheim said private consultation among the 15 members was expected to bring a council meeting "in the next few days."

"It is a serious situation, a dangerous situation," Waldheim told newsmen, "and we can only hope the efforts which will be undertaken now will lead to an agreed solution."

Although Fahmi appeared to leave an opening for the continued presence of the U. N. force of 4,000 men from seven countries as a buffer between Israel and Egypt in the Sinai, Waldheim said they could not remain without extension of the mandate due to expire in eight days. UNEF could not remain on duty without a mandate agreed to by both sides and approved by the Security Council, he said.

There also have been reports U.S. troops might man an early warning system between the two sides.

The Israeli communique said:

"The existence of the U.N. peace-keeping forces is an integral part of the separation of forces agreement between Israel and Egypt. Israel believes that every move that increases the tension in the area does not help the diplomatic efforts toward peace."

The communique followed statements by an Israeli Foreign Ministry official that the Egyptian move was designed to impose a deadline on negotiations between the two countries for a new interim peace accord in the Sinai.

Senate Votes Oil Price Extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved a half-year extension of oil price controls, ignoring President Ford's proposal that the per-barrel cost be allowed to more than double over the next 30 months.

Speaker Carl Albert said the House would take the same approach.

But the showdown between the administration and the Democratic-dominated Congress on energy policy will come when Ford formally submits his proposal, an action expected today. Under Ford's plan, the price of about two-thirds of America's oil production would rise from $5.25 to $13.50 a barrel.

Once the program is submitted to Congress, it can be kill if either the Senate or House rejects it within five working days. Ford's hopes of approval in both chambers appear slim in view of heavy opposition from Democrats.

Should Congress reject Ford's plan for a gradual decontrol of oil in production before 1973 — now selling at $5.25 a barrel — only an extension of the kind approved by the Senate would keep prices from spiraling to world levels of around $12 when the current law expires Aug. 31.

Albert said he favored the extension as a "safety valve" because the congressional energy program — including some bills dealing with oil pricing — is just beginning to move and has no chance of final action before the August recess.

Senate passage of the six-month extension, 62-29, was only one indication of the major energy program Congress has mapped for the final three weeks before the recess.

The Senate also passed, 63-21, a bill that would force auto manufacturers to build cars that get double the mileage-per-gallon of the 1974 models by 1985. A similar provision is contained in a House-passed energy package.

The bill authorizes the Transportation Secretary to set mileage standards beginning with the 1974 models reaching at least a 50 per cent improvement by 1980 and a 100 per cent improvement five years later. That would mean manufacturers would have to produce cars getting 21 miles-per-gallon in five years and 28 miles-per-gallon in 10 years or face fines of $50 to $100 a car.

return to roads already painted with outside white stripes and then stripe them in yellow. Doing one entire area at a time is more economical, he said.

"If we had had the paint delivered on time, it would have been a different story," Camallonga said, but, "helping out our neighbors and at the same time helping ourselves turned out to be a good idea."

It isn't the first time Ulster County Highway Department has undertaken such a practice. Last year the striping and men were rented to Orange County under similar circumstances and throughout the year Ulster County rents equipment to the towns of the county.

"We help everyone out," he explained, telling of Woodstock, New Paltz, Town of Ulster and Saugerties, among others, renting such things as pavers, trucks, brooms, rollers, backhoes and bulldozers.

"The towns can't afford to buy an $8,000 bulldozer to use perhaps two weeks a year, for a certain job," Camallonga said. So they pay us the state rental rate per hour and we let them have the equipment when we are not using it.

Camallonga said he is hopeful that the yellow paint will be delivered this week.

'Renting Men, Equipment Good Business': Camallonga

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON Renting Ulster County Highway Department men and equipment to stripe roads in Orange County "is good business," Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga Jr., volunteered today in face of mounting criticism of the practice.

Camallonga said Ulster County has made $800 on the deal in the past two weeks — money it otherwise would not have received. In fact, Camallonga said, if he had not agreed to rent the men and equipment, the county would have lost money because the equipment would have remained idle due to lack of paint.

Why is there a lack of paint? Because Ulster County, which buys its paint from Baltimore Paint Company under state bid at a $20,000 to $30,000 saving a year, has not received this year's full order of paint. Other counties in the state reportedly are in the same fix with Baltimore's delivery schedule behind by several months.

When Camallonga learned that Orange County had paint on hand and wished to rent the equipment and three men, the superintendent agreed to rent the equipment at the state price of $11.65 an hour. Orange County also pays the men's wages.

When the paint delivery is

made, the men and equipment will begin work here on Ulster's 450 miles of county roads, Camallonga said.

Part of the paint order arrived last Wednesday but only the white and not the yellow striping paint was delivered. The highway superintendent said he would not begin the striping until all the paint arrives due to cost and safety considerations. Psychologically, painting the white stripes first is unsafe, he explained, because it closes the road in on the driver when there is no yellow stripe down the middle to guide him. It is also more costly to have to

Water, Water Everywhere

Industrial Output Increasing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time since September, America's industrial output has started increasing — providing further evidence the recession has ended.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Tuesday the index — which measures production of manufacturing, mining and gas and electric utilities — rose 0.4 percent in June, after an eight-month decline.

Higher output of consumer goods and nondurable industrial materials was responsible for most of the change. But output of business equipment and durable industrial materials continued to decline.

The monthly index measures changes in physical output of factories and utilities. These are especially sensitive to shifts in demand, and so a turnaround in the index after a sustained decline could herald a similar trend in the overall economy.

Another barometer, the so-called "leading indicators," have moved up three straight months after a two-year decline, giving evidence that the longest of the five recessions since World War II may have run its course.

The June production report showed auto assemblies up 8 percent to a 7.2-million-unit annual rate; production of household appliances and non-durable consumer goods continued to expand; steel production continued to slump, partly because industries continued to work off steel on hand in inventory before placing new orders.

There was a sharp rise in output of textiles, paper, chemical and other non-durable materials.

The reserve board's index now stands at 110.1, which is 12.4 percent below the peak last September.

C-H Seeks Hike

POUGHKEEPSIE

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp., citing rising costs due to labor and oil, has petitioned the Public Service Commission for a 2.49 per cent rate increase which will realize $3,255,000 if approved.

Central Hudson says the increase will cost its residential customers who use an average of 500 kilowatt-hours per month — for which they pay $25.50 — a total of 63 cents a month.

Central Hudson was granted an increase by the PSC seven months ago but says that since then it has settled a contract with 77 percent of its employees which became effective July 1. Also, the utility says it needs larger amounts of working capital to cover the higher cost of oil.

The utility seeks an effective date of Aug. 14 for implementation of the rate increase. The PSC is expected to take somewhat longer than that for its review procedure.

Fish Writes Carey On Disband Orders

WASHINGTON

Cong. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) has written Gov. Hugh L. Carey asking him to rescind orders that would disband Harlem Valley State Hospital in Windale and shift patients from the Wassaic Development Center to the Windale facility.

Fish warns that if the orders are carried out it could have "disasterous repercussions" on the entire Harlem Valley region.

He argues his case from both a medical and an economic viewpoint stating that closing the state hospital could mean the loss of $20 million a year to an area from Millerton to Brewster.

He further states that according to medical opinion he's received, the transfer of any patients "will have serious consequences" which could lead to the death of some of geriatric patients.

A Fish spokesman said the congressman has not received a reply from his July 11 letter to Carey but adds, "we are hopeful for the short term that they won't close the facility."

DETROIT (UPD) — Early July sales of American-built cars were up a stronger-than-expected 6 percent over June, but industry executives found their best news in the truck sales reports.

The improved truck sales, industry executives said Wednesday, could drag car sales up with them and step up the pace of the slow recovery the industry has nurtured since early spring.

The industry's July 1-10 reports released Tuesday showed car sales still 5 percent below year-ago levels and 32 percent down from record levels two years ago. But the normal pattern is for an 8 percent drop between early July and the first part of July.

Truck sales were up 4 percent over last year, a feat auto sales haven't accomplished since September. Chrysler truck deliveries were a record for a July 1-10 period.

"Both business and consumer confidence are necessary parts of any sales recovery," Bennett Bidwell, Ford's vice president for sales, said.

"The current truck sales pace underscores an upturn in business confidence which should in turn create more jobs, even more consumer confidence, and more passenger car sales."

Truck and commercial vehicle deliveries by the three major auto companies totaled 51,842. Chrysler topped last year by 8 percent, Ford 7 percent and General Motors 1 percent.

Deliveries of 167,101 cars were the best for an early month period since October, when the '75s were introduced, with small, fuel-efficient and luxury models setting the pace. Cadillac sales were the best ever and Chrysler's imported Dodge Colt was up 88 percent from last year.

Only Ford was able to top both the year-ago and month-ago levels on the strength of its new Mustang II, Pinto and Bobcat MPG (miles per gallon) models accounting for 31 percent of its early July sales. Ford topped last year by just under 1 percent and its June pace by 26 percent.

SEN. HENRY JACKSON (L), AND SOLZHENITSYN

(UPI)

'Complacent In Affluence;' Soviet Author About U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Exiled Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn has told Congress America is "complacent in its affluence" and reluctant to understand the suffering caused by the Soviet government.

He spoke Tuesday at a reception in his honor in the Old Senate Caucus Room as the United States and Soviet Union dramatized their policy of detente by launching their joint Apollo-Soyuz space spectacular.

Solzhenitsyn questioned whether he had succeeded in his public speeches here and in New York to move the United States — "which is so complacent in its affluence" — toward an appreciation of the worldwide threats of Soviet authoritarianism.

Referring to the Soviet-promoted Conference on European Security and Cooperation in Helsinki this month, the bearded, Nobel prize winner taunted the legislators:

"In these very weeks when an amicable agreement of diplomatic shovels will bury and pack down still-breathing bodies in a common grave, I tried to explain to the Americans that in 1973 — the tender dawn of detente — was when the starvation rations of Soviet camps was made even thinner." Solzhenitsyn said that as detente has progressed, Soviet authorities have refined their "system of punishment" by introducing forced labor for prisoners in solitary confinement who are "cold, hungry, without fresh air, and working to impossible output norms."

The Russian author has won world renown for his historical novels on Soviet prison camp life. He recently was voted honorary U.S. citizenship by the Senate, but not yet by the House.

He told senators and congressman the "overwhelming suffering" of the Russian past was a message "which comes to you, as it were, from the future."

He called on the United States to find men to lead the world away from authoritarian repression and toward individual freedom and human rights.

"I want to tell you," he said, recalling his Soviet days before he was accused of treason and exiled last year, "how we take in your words, and deeds and actions, sometimes with approval, but sometimes with horror and despair."

Kissinger Rules Out U.S. Involvement

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has ruled out the possibility of U.S. military involvement in the Sinai Desert as a buffer between Israel and Egypt.

"Whatever might be done in the Sinai it will not involve the United States in any possible military operation," he said Tuesday in response to a question about any new interim agreement in the Middle East.

Kissinger told a news conference such involvement had not been brought up in general discussions on the Middle East.

The proposal, he said, was that the reconnaissance flights the United States has been conducting the past 18 months on behalf of both Israel and Egypt might be extended on "a more permanent basis" to warn both parties of military movements by one side or the other.

"That would be done from both sides," he said. "It would not be done for the United States and would not involve any possibility of any military combat."

Kissinger was on a speaking tour of the northern Midwest which brought him to Minneapolis for a speech and news conference Tuesday and to Milwaukee, Wis., Tuesday night, where he threw out the first ball at the All-Star baseball game.

He scheduled a news conference later today in Milwaukee before flying back to Washington.

In his Minneapolis speech, Kissinger defended the U.S. Soviet detente, saying the joint manned mission in space, an area of "almost mortal rivalry" 15 years ago, is symbolic of the improved relations between the two superpowers.

He challenged critics to offer a better alternative than detente and asked if they want to go back to the "constant crisis," danger and high cost of cold war.

30 Years Ago...History Was Changed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — It was 30 years ago today that a group of scientists gathered on a desert in New Mexico and changed the course of history. They exploded the first atomic bomb.

It was, as the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists says, "the birth of Big Science."

The blast at Alamogordo, N.M., on July 16, 1945, ushered in an era of superstar scientists. Men who previously had little influence in government and had worked in fields virtually unknown to the public suddenly became towering figures in the nation's future.

In the years that followed, scientists such as Edward Teller and J. Robert Oppenheimer became household names — often embroiled in controversy.

More Americans won the Nobel Prize. Six Nobel laureates of the post-World War II period had been involved at the Los Alamos, N.M., laboratory during the war.

Nobel-winning physicist Luis Alvarez, of the University of California at Berkeley, thinks that "not only the bomb but radar and other wartime developments" gave the public new awareness of scientists.

In earlier years, he recalls, "if I went to a party, I always said I was a chemist because nobody knew what a physicist did."

After the Alamogordo blast, "people recognized there was a lot they hadn't known about science. And then it made the war shorter and saved a lot of lives," he said.

But scientists themselves disagree about what has happened in the three decades since the men of the Manhattan Project exploded their bomb in New Mexico and built the ones that destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki less than a month later.

Teller, often referred to as "the father of the H-bomb" — a title he dislikes — says:

"It is true that scientists have been more in the public eye, but science has not been. I would almost say that the scientists have become more important and science less, and that is a poor bargain."

"If there would be more public interest in science itself and what we are doing, or in technology itself, that would be a real advantage — but that is not what has happened."

Teller said recently he felt the quality of young scientists has "declined catastrophically."

He suggested one reason was many young persons do not consider science as relevant a field as in the past.

"I think there has been a decline in interest," agrees Hans Mark, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, Calif.

"Nowadays we are in the cycle of 'help your neighbor.' Of course science fits importantly into this idea. But there are cycles of popular ideas."

Says Teller: "There used to be an uncritical admiration of progress, and that no longer exists."

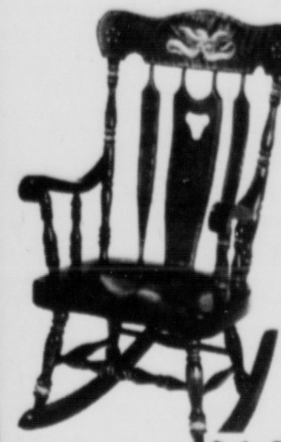

Adds Alvarez: "When you walk into a university bookstore and see books of astrology on prominent display, it gives you food for thought."

"I find it a shocking thing, this interest in astrology and

New Jersey Crop Losses At $20 Million

By UPI
Homes and business were awash, crops lay in ruin at the height of the harvest season and the death toll mounted. It was midsummer weather on the rampage.
Floodwaters and torrential rains Tuesday drove hundreds of persons from their homes in the flooded Northeast in the latest of a three-day onslaught that has left at least nine persons dead.

New Jersey was hardest hit — at least six dead, more than $20 million in crop losses alone and additional millions of damage to homes and businesses. "It's a sad day for New Jersey agriculture and even sadder for the consumer," New Jersey Agriculture Secretary Phillip Alampi said after an aerial tour of seven counties in the flood-swept Garden State.

Tomato and wheat fields lay in ruin at the height of the harvest season. Their loss was bound to raise grocery prices throughout the Eastern states which rely on Jersey produce.
Gov. Brendan Byrne declared a flood disaster in New Jersey to bring federal relief to farmers and homeowners.

New downpours Tuesday hit communities already awash from more than 10 inches of rain. Some areas had received more than nine inches of rain in a 24-hour period.
The flooding and rain stretched from Delaware to New England. Delaware had two weather-attributed deaths and Pennsylvania one.
Some parts of Rahway, N.J., were under five feet of water. Rescue crews using boats evacuated 40 families in Trenton, N.J., where storm-related damage was estimated at more than $300,000. At least 35 families were evacuated and more than 22 roads flooded along the Raritan and Millstone rivers in Somerset County, N.J.

The New Jersey legislative session in Trenton was canceled because of highway flooding.
Floodwaters washed over many major roadways in the New York City area during the morning rush hours Tuesday.
The rain stopped in New Jersey — at least temporarily — by midafternoon, and the National Weather Service said "the heavy precipitation along the northeast Atlantic Coast is beginning to diminish."
One New Yorker, complaining "my tomatoes are washing off my roof garden," was dubious.
"This is St. Swithin's Day," he said.
"Old English tradition has it that if it rains on St. Swithin's Day it will rain for 40 days."

Fresh Produce Prices to Rise

By United Press International
Torrential rains and windstorms this week washed away any remaining hopes of lower retail prices for fruits and vegetables at the late summer peak of the harvest season in the Northeast and several other areas of the country.

Food prices in general continued to rise, although the cost of feeding a family of four in New York City last week dropped .6 per cent from the previous week.

The New York market basket figure is based on a weekly 38-item study by the Department of Consumer Affairs. It cost $67.11 last week, 38 cents less than that of the week ending July 4.

But in a Dallas supermarket, the price of a pound of butter rose to $1.22 a pound, while chicken was as dear as meat in some cities covered by UPI's regular survey of basic food prices in the United States.

Hartford's top price of 99 cents a pound for whole broiler-fryer chickens was almost double the average of 58 cents recorded March 16. The low of 48 cents a pound in San Diego was 10 cents below the average. At the higher prices, about the only way to save money is by using the birds in combination dishes, such as main dish salads or hot entrees, including Spanish paella and chicken a la king.

Bargains in pork chops were equally hard to find. A high of $2.28 a pound for loin end chops was reported in Cincinnati, almost a dollar above the average. The low, 99 cents, was in Phoenix.

The butter price in Dallas represented a 26 cent a pound increase over the average during the base week last March 16. The low of 89 cents in Hartford, Phoenix, Buffalo and Milwaukee dropped 7 cents below the average. One Hartford supermarket sold a premium brand of corn oil margarine for the same price as butter there. At 89 cents a pound, it was the top for the week in UPI's survey. The low, 53 cents, was recorded in Grand Rapids.

Picnickers looking for inexpensive eggs to hard-boil or devil could find them in San Diego. The 48-cent-a-dozen price for large grade A eggs there was the national low, 29 cents below the average. The high of 85 cents a dozen in Hartford and Honolulu was 8 cents above the average.

Ground chuck for hamburgers, meatloaf, meatballs and combination dishes rose to $1.39 a pound in Miami, and was $1.28 or $1.29 in five other cities. However, Los Angeles reported only 69 cents, 26 cents below the March average, and in six cities it sold for 87 to 89 cents a pound, compared with the 95 cent a pound average.

Convicted In Murder of Twin Fetuses

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) — Winfield Anderson, who claimed he was asleep at a friend's house at the time a pregnant woman was shot during a holdup, has been convicted in the murder of twin fetuses who died hours after premature birth.

The conviction Tuesday was unprecedented in New Jersey, where criminal codes had not clearly defined the protection under the law accorded to unborn children.

However, Camden County Judge Leon Wingate, drawing on Common Law, ruled that Anderson could be charged with murder since the 7½-month-old fetuses were "victims of a wound upon their mother ... were born alive ... and subsequently died hours later."

The implication was that had the infants been stillborn, Anderson would not have been charged with homicide.

Prosecutor William Cahill Jr., son of former the New Jersey governor, had called the case a routine homicide. The jury deliberated more than 10 hours over a two-day period.

Anderson, 24, who firmly believed he would be found innocent, was shaken when the jury ticked off 10 guilty verdicts for the two murders and various offenses, including assault, robbery and possession of a gun.

When his attorney, Carl Taraschi, asked for a roll-call of the six men and six women, Anderson stood abruptly with hands outstretched, ready to be led away by a court attendant.

"Take me upstairs. I don't want to hear it," he said several times as his sister wept softly. Sentencing was delayed until next week. He faces a maximum term of life in prison.

Anderson was charged with firing the shot March 9 that hit Nikki Spearman, 22, in the abdomen. According to the testimony of physicians, a Caesarean section was performed and both fetuses were breathing when born.

One of the infants, named John Lee, was struck by the bullet in the spinal cord and lived less than four hours. The other infant, named Jonathan Lee, was not struck by the bullet, but death was attributed to the premature birth and shock.

The shooting allegedly took place when Anderson went to Miss Spearman's house to purchase marijuana from her common-law husband and pulled a gun, demanding both the drug and cash.

Taraschi said he would appeal the verdict, but anticipated having to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Funds Needed for Ellenville Rec Program

ELLENVILLE The haunting prospect of closing the Ellenville Recreation Program which 350 children are presently enjoying seems imminent if a large deficit is not met.

In an appeal to the community at-large, the Marist Brothers, who direct the program, seek $2,800 saying that despite the generosity already shown, the program is in treacherous financial shape.

A fund-raising dance was held in May which raised $750. Various government and private organizations have contributed about $2,500 and the Town of Wawarsing and Ellenville have already made generous donations.

But the budget does not have enough capital behind it. According to Brian A. Fallon who coordinates publicity for the program, the combined cost of bus rental and gas, insurance for each of the 350 children registered in the program, counselors' salaries and miscellaneous program and supplies and activities, a conservative estimate of this summer's budget is about $11,000. "This sum must be dealt with seriously," Fallon said.

"Past experience in other recreation programs has shown us that although our services were considered invaluable, the community failed to contribute enough. Such was the case in Newburgh. Last summer the brothers were forced to close permanently the Newburgh Recreation Program imply because of a financial crisis. Certain individuals and small businesses did contribute, yet the town people as a group refused to acknowledge and respond to the plea for money," he said. "This must not happen in Ellenville. We do not think it will."

"In order to continue functioning effectively, our greatest financial weakness must become the source of our greatest strength, Fallon advised. "Practically, our weakness stems from the fact that no registration fee exists. None of the parents of the 350 children are required to contribute anything. This policy allows all children to register, not just those elite who can afford it. However, this policy also places the future of the program in the hands of the entire community. The freedom to donate is our weakness. The generous community response to our plea must be our strength."

"Thus, our strength is your strength; and, our weakness is your weakness. The program belongs not to the Marist Brothers, Fallon explained, but to all those who consider the Ellenville Recreation Program worthwhile. Although we realize many have contributed already, we ask once again for support. A fund drive is in progress. We ask all to seriously reflect upon the value of the program and how much you can contribute," he concluded. Donations may be mailed to The Marist Brothers, 4 Maple Avenue, Ellenville, N.Y. 12428.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

May-July, 1775:

Cleavages deepen in British opinion regarding the colonies. The news of Lexington and Concord reaches London in late May. Ten days earlier Lord Effingham—a respected veteran in the Royal army—resigns his commission in order to avoid taking up arms against the colonists. On June 24, in an address to the King, the citizens of London tell the King that the English people can expect nothing from war with the colonies except "gazettes of blood and mutual lists of their slaughtered fellow subjects." Sympathy for the colonies extends even to the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester. In July he journeys to France, where he is received as a guest of Louis XVI. At a banquet for the Duke, one of the guests is the Marquis de Lafayette. Hearing descriptions of the hostilities in Massachusetts, Lafayette leaves the banquet vowing to enlist in the American cause.

Is It Ethical?

Since the issue of campaign financing will be featured more in the news as we approach this fall's national elections, the questions of Big Labor's contributions to favorite candidates will also undergo more challenges. Many union members are seeking an answer in the courts to this ethical question: Does a union have the moral right to make contributions to individual candidates with funds collected from union dues? Many workers are now becoming aware of the contradiction in this type of arrangement in which union leaders open the coffers to lend financial aid to one candidate while individual union members may be voting for his opponent. The whole setup reeks of an arbitrary disenfranchisement of an individual's right of free choice.

Similarly, the generous donation of funds from union treasuries to influence pending congressional legislation also must be curbed. It has been reported that 33 of 39 members of the House Committee on Education and Labor received campaign contributions from organized labor last year totaling $429,632. These outright cash contributions were in addition to labor's non-cash assistance in the form of manpower and services. Among the pivotal issues this committee was scheduled to consider was compulsory unionism for all governmental employees at the local, state and federal levels. While the legality of these donations may hold, surely important ethical questions arise. Much has been said and done to prevent Big Business from influencing elected officials, a similar line must be taken as far as Big Labor is concerned.

WASHINGTON—President Ford called Republican leaders behind closed White House doors the other day to discuss what to do about the soaring crime rate. The discussion quickly centered on gun control.

"The gun control issue," warned Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., "is the lightning rod which buzzes the voters."

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggested that the issue should be separated from the main crime-control legislation. "Can't gun control be in a separate bill?" he asked.

"Yes," agreed Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt. "Unless separated, we'll have trouble with both bills."

"Isn't gun control a bit untimely?" protested Rep. James Quillen, R-Tenn.

"Jim," said the President firmly, "the statistics of gun crimes are absolutely shocking. This zeroes in on the area of greatest threat."

"What about creating federal statutes covering crimes with firearms?" suggested House Republican leader John Rhodes.

"That would only add to the federal case load," objected Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich.

"We don't ask for the registration of the gun or the gun owner," explained the President. But he wanted to curb the sale of cheap "Saturday night specials," which street criminals carry.

These handguns have become "a major factor," said the President, "in larger crime areas."

"I'm for banning Saturday night specials," agreed Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., "but only providing we get the right definition and limitations of the term, 'Saturday night special.' The size of the gun, yes. The price of the gun, no."

The real problem, he grumbled, was the failure of local law enforcement. "There are a million illegally possessed guns in New York City," he said, "and the mayor has the nerve to blame the federal government. There is a failure of local enforcement of the law on licensed dealers."

The confidential White House minutes show that President Ford also favors compensating crime victims.

"I've seen the data from 12 states which have it," he said, "It has not run wild. It's under control."

What about the greatest flaw of all—lenient judges? broke in Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, a former Pennsylvania prosecutor. "I used to convict them in the front room, then the defense counsel and the judge would spring them in the back room."

We are proposing some strict standards for sentencing by judges," said Atty. Gen. Edward Levi.

The President agreed that judges were letting hardened criminals loose in the streets. "An abnormal percentage of crime," he said, "is committed by a relatively small number of criminals."

"I think the Board of Judges ought to do something about 'judge shopping,'" Scott added, referring to the practice of some defense counsel to seek the most lenient judges for their cases. "It's a dreadful scandal."

"We've had a very large increase in crime," the President repeated. He called for a "tough program to protect the victim and to promote domestic tranquility."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: The House International Relations Policy subcommittee is putting together hearings under chairman Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., on whether renewed U.S. military aid to Turkey should depend on an end to Turkish opium growing. During a shortage of the life-sustaining kidney and heart drug heparin last fall, one firm began charging 400 percent more than the preshortage prices. The drugmaker, North American Pharmaceutical, Dearborn, Mich., told us it had to sell high because its foreign suppliers had skyrocketed prices.

Chairman Richard Holmquist of the Federal Renegotiation Board has taken a strange attitude toward his job of eliminating excess profits on government contracts. In draft testimony, he said "there is nothing wrong with 'excessive profits'" if a company is efficient, innovative or has a proper

By Rowland Evans

WASHINGTON—A list of "several hundred" Jewish and non-Jewish Romanians recently granted emigration visas was quietly delivered to Sen. Henry M. Jackson in the latest round of Romania's extraordinary campaign for equal treatment in its trade with the U.S.

That followed Romanian president Nicolae Ceausescu's unprecedented stopover visit here June 11 to lobby Jackson and other congressional builders of the barricade to trade equality known as the Jackson amendment, aimed at forcing Communist countries to permit free emigration as the price for U.S. trade equality.

In fact, the Jackson amendment had one major target—freeing Jews from the Soviet Union. Now caught in the snare of the amendment is Romania, the Eastern European Communist state that, with the sole exception of Yugoslavia, has most courageously refused to toe Moscow's foreign policy line. Instead, Romania has staked out bold independence in its relations with nations not in the Soviet orbit, particularly China and the U.S.

It was precisely for that reason that President Ford asked Congress to waive the Jackson amendment for Romania. The waiver requires approval of both the House and the Senate and administration officials are now in the midst of trying to persuade the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees to adopt waiver resolutions.

Thus, involved here is far more than simply the question of extending most-favored-nation status to Romania (along with U.S. credits to lubricate heavier two-way trade). At stake is a basic principle of U.S. foreign policy to weaken once-monolithic Soviet control over its Eastern European empire.

That principle supports doing whatever is possible to encourage diversity and independent policies within the Soviet Union's Communist orbit. Yet, even though trade with the U.S. is an obvious lever with which to encourage Romanian diversity, it is now being blocked by an act of Congress designed not nearly so much for Romania as for the Soviet Union, where many hundreds of thousands out of three million Jews desperately want to emigrate.

Inside Report

Waiving the Jackson Amendment

Romania on the other hand has allowed some 300,000 Jews to emigrate, most of them to Israel, over the past 20 years. There are now no more than 100,000—at the maximum—left in Romania.

Moreover, Romania is the only Eastern European state that kept formal diplomatic relations with Israel after Israel's conquest of Arab lands in the 1967 war. At a press conference in Bucharest early last month, Israeli foreign minister Yigal Allon praised Romania's treatment of its remaining Jewish population. "As a Jew," he said, "I witnessed how the Jewish community in this country enjoys the liberty of cult, spiritual and religious freedom and that the members of this community are everywhere considered equal citizens."

Even conceding the diplomatic niceties imposed by a formal visit, Allon's remarks went beyond any protocol requirements. That helps explain why some Congressmen who met with Ceausescu were embarrassed at Jackson's characteristically blunt talk in demanding proof that Ceausescu would lift emigration bars for Romanians, particularly those wanting to go to Israel.

The list of "several hundred" Romanians recently granted visas which was quietly delivered to the Senator was the first hard fruit of Ceausescu's personal lobbying and Jackson's personal pressure. All told, some 1,500 visas were issued in Romania during June, including 500 whose destination—if they actually get out—is the U.S.

But even if that visa list turns out to be a fraudulent maneuver to influence congressional passage of the Jackson amendment waiver, the maneuver can't work for long. That's because under terms of the Jackson amendment, a complete review of the Romanian emigration experience must take place next June, at which time equality in trade would be cancelled if the emigration doors have been shut.

The litmus test for how Congress will decide the President's waiver request is in the leadership of the American Jewish community and among the original congressional backers of the Jackson amendment. One such Congressman told us that Romania's past performance on emigration, particularly of Romanian Jews, has convinced him to support the waiver "if they can show any increase" over 1974, when 3,500 emigrants left.

Others see a more Machiavellian reason to support the waiver. They are deeply concerned over the precipitous decline in Soviet Jewish emigration from a peak of 35,000 in 1973, at a time Moscow was trying to negotiate around the Jackson amendment by widening the door to Israel. The drop to less than half that number suggests what might follow rejection of Mr. Ford's waiver request.

The coins' future worth may be $1.4 million. A reader, Lorenzo Lowe, of Arlington, Va. suggests the light-fingered legislators be thwarted by a minting of bushels of the pennies and thus bringing their value down to $5 or $10.

Fun City Has Flamed Out

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It looks like bombed-out Berlin in 1945. Rows of five-story flats open blackened mouths to the south, the roofs gone, walls sagging. Vietnam? No. South Bronx, New York. That is where arson is king.

Engine 82 responds to 9,000 alarms each year. Over 3,600 are false alarms. Whether there is a fire or not, the arrival of Engine 82 is always met by a barrage of bottles, boards and spikes from neighboring rooftops.

My interest in the blackened land was piqued by an article in "The Village Voice" written by Howard Blum. "It's like a ghost town up here now," Fire Captain Robert Farrell told Blum. "When I came here 10 years ago, this street was filled with buildings and people. Now there's nothing left but rocks."

Frank Doyle, an old friend who is public relations director for the New York Fire Department, states the somber figures: "5,500 fires in South Bronx set in the last 17 months." Fun City has been flamed out.

When Engine 82 responds to a false alarm, it keeps moving. Ten a day, the helmeted and booted men look for smoke. The bottles, bricks and boards cascade downward. The men yell to the driver, "For Christ sake keep going!"

The firehouse seems to be the only warm living thing within a half mile. Many of the burned-out shells are marked with a big chalky X. This means: "Dangerous to firemen. Do not enter."

"It's us versus the animals," a veteran of Vietnam says. "They can throw rocks or strip the truck clean and we can't do a thing. The natives around here are walking 10 feet tall because the city won't let us hit back."

The city is Mayor Abe Beame. The match kings of the South Bronx represent bloc voting. Few arrests are made. The smell of gasoline permeates the old toasters. Cops are busy busting numbers runners and bookies. They shrug off 5,000 fires in one small area. "It ain't kids," one tells me. "It's done by family men. There's a profit in fire."

Men rip off the radiators in buildings. Frightened residents—mostly unemployed Puerto Ricans—move out. The vandals tear out the fake marble stairs and sell them. They can't get at the piping and plumbing in the walls, so they distribute gasoline up and down five stories.

They buy it in gallon cans. The men in filling stations know when there is going to be a fire before the firemen. It requires skill to make a huge flue of an empty stairwell.

A man with a gasoline-soaked rag and a book of matches dogtrotts in the two feet of litter behind the flat. He lights the rag and tosses it inside. Then he sits on a stoop with a jug of wine, waiting and watching.

He watches the ruddy light glow from within the building. The young men arm themselves with boards and stones and to the rooftops of other buildings. They wait. The sirens start low and complaining. They shriek when they turn on Seabury Avenue.

The flat is a roaring furnace. Fearful firemen get off the engines and look up into the darkness for a flying object which could be a fractured skull or a broken arm. One says, "The animals are juiced up tonight."

Doing the Looters Work

When the fire is out, the exhausted fighters rip the walls with axes, looking for pockets of smoke. They do all the work for the en who want to dismantle and sell the piping. They hide behind anonymity, but a defender says, "Look, we too have to eat."

The firemen are scornful. "Welfare skulls," they are called. It is pointless for them to call the police. The cops cannot arrest an entire neighborhood on suspicion. Howard Blum sat in a frustrating firehouse night after night.

On Friday, at 11:15 p.m., the men sat around a television set, listening to the news. The writer knew that the mayor proposed to save money by firing over 7,000 police and firemen. Some had banded together to write a hate sheet switching "Fun City" to "Fear City."

Mayor Beame had sued out an injunction against that pamphlet. The voice of the dispatcher blared. He said he would read the six-page injunction. The firemen turned up their TV loudspeaker, but they couldn't drown the flat nasal tone of the dispatcher.

It was read twice. "I almost wish," one fireman said, "that there would be a fire so I could get out of here."

Freeman Readers Write

Joanna Pierce

Editor, The Freeman:

Regarding the Joanna Pierce case, how low will Ulster County go?

I understand this is the first time in America for a county to uphold and give the most liberal visitation rights in all of the United States of America to an illegitimate father (Webster's Dictionary: "illegal" father).

Franklin Pierce didn't care enough for this child to give the child a proper home or support even though he is a very wealthy man.

Dr. Solnit of Yale University Child Study Center said Joanna was a beautifully well adjusted child, raised by her loving mother, unassisted by Franklin Pierce for the majority of Joanna's life. By what reasoning does an Ulster County judge second guess an eminent child psychiatrist and child psychoanalyst by taking a little child from the arms of her loving mother to give so-called rights to a man who never earned any rights. Why is it allowed for a judge to be in a Family Court position when the child's best interests are not his primary concern?

It is unbelievable for any intelligent person with any sense of humanity or understanding not to have seen through Pierce's revengeful scheme now perpetuated by this illegal father through his devious deeds.

This must be an all-time new 20th Century low for America. Ulster County was accused of being in the Dark Ages in the Luni case in 1966 (with the same judge) and it has passed decency and sunk into indecency.

Why on the face of our earth does an illegal father have any rights at all? Only in unfair Ulster County!

Paper Drives

Editor: The Freeman

In reference to Carl Graham's report of the Marbltown Town Board meeting in the July 10th Freeman, I do not believe I used the word "failure" in discussing our recent paper drive. When a combined community effort keeps almost five tons of newspaper out of our town landfill, it can hardly be termed a failure.

What I recall saying was that we did not take in as much paper as we had expected at our drive in June. Due to poor market conditions for recycled paper, we have not held regular drives for the past year and so had thought we might collect a much larger quantity.

If any Marbltown residents have given up on saving paper during this period, I wanted to alert them that the market is improving and we are planning drives on a more regular basis. We have our next drive tentatively planned, as the news item stated, for immediately after Labor Day. So do save your newspapers.

Foot Talk

Editor, The Freeman:

The warm weather months mean outdoor action—but they can also mean hobbling around a tennis court, developing "jogger's knee," or picking up a fungus infection. The Podiatry Society of the State of New York therefore offers the following advice on how to keep feet fit for summer living.

Going barefoot in public places, such as stores or littered streets can result in cuts and bruises, and even plantar warts — painful virus infections which invade the soles of the feet. However, walking barefoot on beaches, or soft grassy areas is fine. As a matter of fact, walking is still the best exercise of all—with or without shoes.

Jogging can be dangerous without proper preparation. Corns, bunions and blisters should be taken care of before jogging. Properly fitted sneakers and athletic socks should be worn. Joggers should never run on the balls of their feet. There should be heel to toe contact while running. The whole foot should be used in order to avoid muscle strain.

Summer's added activity is highly conducive to athlete's foot and the best defense is strict attention to foot hygiene. This means daily bathing and careful drying between the toes.

Sincerely,
DR. DON BERGAMO
President
Mid-Hudson Division
Podiatry Society
State of N.Y.

Mrs. Tennant

Editor, The Freeman:

There was joy in Flatbush that day. And in Saugerties and Kingston, in Ellenville, Esopus and Shokan and Plattekill. While making no pretense at omniscience, I'm sure that throughout the whole of Ulster County there were literally thousands of people ready to dance in the streets at reading the lead item on the front page of the Freeman, July 8th: "Mrs. Tennant Accepts Job, Declines Salary."

The thought of turning over their leadership to an untried newcomer had a great many senior citizens worried. We didn't know whether or not Mrs. Tennant had applied for the job. It wasn't our business to ask. We simply hoped that she had and that she would be selected. Now that our dream has come true, well, thanks be to God!

Believe me, this is SOME lady. The fact that she accepted the position without pay doesn't surprise us in the least. Mrs. Tennant is a lady of strong principle. She is dedicated to the well being of her fellow seniors. She makes no bones about her lack of respect for impersonal bureaucrats. A warm, considerate human being, she is beloved of her peers. She is possessed of remarkable patience and understanding, a driving energy and a delightful sense of humor. Mr. Savago is to be congratulated on his wisdom in selecting her. Mrs. Tennant is to be congratulated on this most natural course of events.

But most of all, congratulations to all the senior citizens of Ulster County!

Sincerely,
BILL HEITZMAN

Pocahontas

Editor, The Freeman:

The Bicentennial Celebration of 1976 has already begun in a number of places, at least some special events have taken place already. A grave injustice may, however, take place as a result of our country's concern for bicentennial celebrations.

There is a joint resolution (H.J. 319) introduced by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr. stated "to authorize the return of the remains of Pocahontas to the United States and the establishment of an appropriate memorial commemorating her place in American history." As of late May the resolution was referred to the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. I have not heard or read anything more as to whether it is still in the committee, nor have I heard from Representative Fish concerning his reasons for introducing the bill.

My grandfather was a full-blooded Pamunky and a descendant of Powhatan, father of Pocahontas. I believe it would be an injustice to allow this bill to pass. The American Indian would not be honored if the remains of Pocahontas were brought back from England. First of all Pocahontas chose to marry John Rolfe and leave these shores for England. Since she chose to go to England, and it is there that she died, there are several people on the Pamunky and Mataponi reservations who feel that is where her remains should stay. The bones and burial place of Pocahontas should be respected, and left undisturbed.

Secondly, the purpose of obtaining the remains of Pocahontas is for the Bicentennial Celebration of 1976. This represents further exploitation and discrimination against the American Indian. To set up a memorial of the remains of Pocahontas for the tourist trade in 1976 would be exploitative of the American Indian. The people on the reservation feel this is being done for monetary reasons, to attract tourists, and to disrupt history for these reasons is not right. It is sacrilegious to use one's bones for such purposes. This is disturbing to her own people. What about John Rolfe's or Captain Smith's bones?

My own heritage includes more than just American Indian. But I have to ask the question: with regard to the Bicentennial, what does the American Indian have to celebrate? What do the 200 years mean for the history of the American Indian? Give it some thought. To bring back Pocahontas' remains for the Bicentennial Celebration, I believe, would not honor the American Indian, but would be further insult.

I feel that the resolution should either be defeated or withdrawn. Pocahontas' people, the American Indians, should have a say in this matter. I don't feel anyone else can decide to disturb the burial place of any individual. Let her rest where she lies. I do not know the fate of the resolution at the present writing, but I urge anyone who feels the same to write to their congressman and/or the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs.

Respectfully,
Rev. Nickolas

United Parcel Service Granted Coast-to-Coast Authority

WASHINGTON, D.C. For the first time in its 68-year history, United Parcel Service (UPS) has been granted authority to provide coast-to-coast parcel delivery service.

The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) has authorized UPS to provide package pickup and delivery in all 48 contiguous states, subject to certain preexisting and relatively minor restrictions.

The new service was to begin today, said a company spokesman, if all of the regulatory steps were completed.

Although a large number of package delivery firms provide such service throughout sections of the nation, United Parcel Service has become the primary alternative to the government's parcel post delivery system.

"This ICC decision," said the company spokesman, "fills in the last two major gaps in the United Parcel Service delivery area."

"It adds five full states to the authorized service area, and also opens service between the Pacific Coast states and the northeastern states running from Maine to Virginia."

The five full states added to the UPS service area are Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah.

"As a consequence," said the UPS spokesman, "the first truly national alternative to the government's parcel post system will be available."

The UPS application for this authority has been pending since 1971, and has more recently been vigorously opposed by the United States Postal Service.

"The new service will be particularly useful to shippers and receivers who reside in remote areas," said the spokesman, "because packages are picked up and delivered directly at the premises of users."

"No dwelling or business is beyond the reach of UPS service," he said. "If a vehicle can be driven there, UPS will go there."

UPS handles packages that weigh 50 pounds or less and have a maximum combined length and girth of 108 inches or less. It is limited to the movement of 100 pounds from one shipper to one consignee each day.

The company was founded in Seattle in 1907, and until the early 1950s it served primarily as a package delivery service for department stores and specialty shops in major metropolitan areas.

In the early 1950s the delivery company began expanding its service area. Since that time UPS has been engaged in a continual quest for authority from federal and state regulatory agencies to serve larger portions of the nation.

This new grant of authority by the ICC culminates the more than two decades of effort by UPS to set up a coast-to-coast package delivery service.

The company has established a network of facilities across the nation, and has scheduled its vehicle movements so that the following package transit times are provided routinely:

Nest-day delivery is made up to at least 150 miles, second-day delivery is made up to a minimum of 450 miles, third-day up to at least 900 miles. Packages move an additional 600 miles on each successive day.

UPS charges rates comparable to those of parcel post, but in addition offers $100 of protection against loss or damage on each package without extra charge or paperwork.

The company offers an automatic daily pickup service, an address correction service, a COD service, and it makes three attempts at delivery of a package, after which the package is returned to the shipper without additional charge.

In addition to the national surface package network that will go on line in mid-July, UPS offers a Blue Label Air Service between the Pacific Coast states and 28 states in the eastern half of the nation.

Retires From Hercules

Frank Vigna (L) accepts a plaque from David Dittman, administrator at Hercules Inc., at a dinner honoring Vigna on the occasion of his retirement after 33 years with Hercules. Joseph Mannello, senior leader of the bridging and filling department is at the right. The affair was held at Holiday Inn. Vigna, a musician, has also been a leader of his own band for 35 years, having played in leading resorts and night clubs in Ulster County. He is married to the former Margaret Carro and has a daughter and two granddaughters.

An 18,000 gallon cooling tank is shown being loaded at Jay Steel Products Inc., Sawkill Road and Route 209 for delivery to Hurley corn grower Jack Gill. One of the area's largest growers of corn, Gill said he will install coils in the tank to cool water to 35 degrees in order to cool corn just prior to shipment thereby assuring the corn's flavor and firmness. The 8 by 10 by 31 foot tank was fabricated at Jay Steel's large, new facility. (Freeman photo)

Norelco now brings true mercury vapor security lighting within reach of every home owner with a do-it-yourself, easy to assemble lighting unit.

The Norelco security light is all aluminum, weighs only 8 1/2 lbs., and installs in minutes by simply connecting it to regular 120 volt household current. The lamp goes on at dusk and off at dawn automatically by a photo electric cell.

You get up to 16,000 hours of trouble free operation from each self ballasted mercury vapor bulb. The ballast is built into each bulb, you simply screw in a new one for lamp replacement.

Positive View of Banking Shown in Recent Survey

WASHINGTON, D.C. A recently released Gallup survey shows a high degree of public confidence in America's banks.

The survey indicates that adults, by a 2-1 margin, believe banks are helping the economy and, by a margin of 9-1, consider bank deposits safe.

The survey was conducted for the American Bankers Association (ABA) by The Gallup Organization Inc. A national sample of 1,594 adults were interviewed in early May, and their answers were analyzed and reported by Gallup.

"For the overwhelming majority of all adults, 'bank safety' is not a concern," Gallup said in its report.

Ninety percent of those interviewed said they believed money in the bank to be safe, 54 percent said "very safe" and 34 percent said "family safe."

Gallup observed that "the proportion who believe money deposited in a bank is 'very' safe is highest among those population groups who are generally better informed on public issues: the college educated, those in professional or business households and those with higher income."

"Seventy-eight percent of all adults believe that money now deposited in a bank is at least as safe as it was five years ago," Gallup reported. "Sixty-three percent believe the money to be 'about as safe' and 15 percent believe it to be safer now."

The report said that banks "are seen as positive factors in the economy by a two-to-one margin."

Of those interviewed, 20 percent said banks are helping the economy a lot, 30 percent said they are helping a little, 12 percent said they are neither helping nor hurting, 17 percent said they are hurting a little, 9 percent said they are hurting a lot and 12 percent had no opinion.

In discussing reasons for their feelings about banking's role in the economy, 20 percent mentioned the provision of loans and mortgages as a positive factor, while 16 percent mentioned high interest rates as a negative factor.

However, banks are usually not held responsible for high interest rates. Inflation is blamed by 52 percent, government policies by 29 percent, rising wages by 16 percent and higher bank profits by 13 percent.

In a companion study of how bankers read public opinion, Gallup found that "overall, bankers have an accurate perception of public attitudes toward banking."

Stays in Family

ELLENVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman B. Loucks have announced the sale of the Loucks Funeral Home Inc. to their son and daughter-in-law, Allan and Kathy Loucks.

Allan Loucks became a member of the firm in October 1967, and became manager Aug. 25, 1970, as the result of Sherman Loucks' illness.

Allan Loucks is a native of Ellenville; he graduated from Ellenville High School in 1964 and received an associate in science degree from Dean Junior College, Franklin, Mass. in 1966. On Sept. 21, 1967, he received a mortuary science degree from the New England Institute of Anatomy, Sanitary Science, Embalming and Funeral Directing in Boston, Mass.

He is junior warden of St. John's Memorial Episcopal Church, chaplain of Ellenville Elks Lodge No. 1971, and second vice president of the Noonday Club, trustee of Scoresby Hose Co., and second vice president of the Catskill Mountain Funeral Directors Association, as well as being a notary public.

His wife and their two children are communicants of St. Mary's and St. Andrew's R.C. Church.

New Heritage Hours

KINGSTON

Joseph F. Brady, President of Heritage Savings Bank, announced today that the hours of the lobby of the Main Office at 273 Wall Street have been changed as follows:

Realtors Call for Aid to Those Buying Existing Homes

CHICAGO, ILL. A plea for inclusion of existing homes in any legislation aimed at stimulating the housing industry has been sounded by Art S. Leitch, president of the National Association of Realtors.

"We have pointed out consistently," Leitch said, "that Census Bureau data indicate that 55 percent of those seeking to purchase a new home must first dispose of an existing home. Thus, measures designed to spur the purchase of homes from the new housing inventory cannot achieve their aim if they are not accompanied by a corresponding stimulus to the sale of previously occupied housing."

Leitch pointed to the home-purchase tax credit which was attached to the tax reduction bill, enacted in March. That provision granted an income tax credit of 5 percent, up to a maximum of $2,000 to those purchasing a new previously unoccupied home which was completed or under construction by March 25, 1975 and occupied by Jan. 1, 1976.

"The intention of that measure was to accelerate the sale of new homes, thus permitting the construction of additional housing and creating new jobs in the process, as a means of helping to end the economic recession," Leitch said. "It has been moderately successful in meeting its objective, but inclusion of existing homes in the tax credit program would have made it far easier for the prospective buyer of a new home to finance his purchase and would have accommodated the millions of home buyers who prefer an older home. Generally, the older home sells at a lower price and represents a better buy for the budget-conscious family."

Leitch pointed out the same flaw in both the emergency housing bill recently vetoed by the President and the more modest successor bill which was passed on the eve of Congress' Fourth of July adjournment.

"We are grateful that Congress included in both bills a provision that up to 20 percent of the funds released to supply housing credit go toward the purchase of existing housing. However, Realtors had urged Congress to specify that a minimum of 25-30 percent of such funds be earmarked for existing homes," Leitch said.

"There is little benefit in offering low-cost mortgage credit to a family contemplating the purchase of a new house if the lack of mortgage financing makes it impossible for the family to find a buyer for its existing homes."

New Quarters for FX

FX Systems Corp. has moved into their new facility at 77 Cornell Street, the former Jacobson Building. According to FX Systems President Robert Wilson, the new facility provides space for expansion of the company's operations, and will serve as headquarters for the corporation. The building replaces a much smaller leased facility in Saugerties. The company builds various kinds of data equipment.

Pow Wow Sunday

KINGSTON

One of the top marching and maneuvering contests in the country will be held in Kingston Sunday at 7 p.m. at the 11th annual Pow Wow of Junior Champions to be held at Dietz Stadium, with the Kingston Indians hosting the event.

The Indians are ineligible to compete in the championship but will perform in exhibition to demonstrate their winning field show. Also Troop 12 Indians, little brothers and sisters of the Indians, will give a performance.

The Philadelphia Police Athletic League Cadets Drum and Bugle Corps, the current American Legion Junior National Champions, will be among five outstanding corps to challenge the Hawthorne Muchachos, who are the defending champions and the only corps to ever win the Pow Wow twice.

Putting in a strong bid for the coveted championship will be the Garfield Cadets who are the first corps to be placed in the Drum Corps Hall of Fame and are ten-time former American Legion National Champions, and the only other corps on this season's competition to have won a Pow Wow championship.

Enjoying one of their best years, Schuylkill Haven Belvedere of Pennsylvania, by virtue of their Pow Wow victory in June, are expected to give one of their greatest performances of the season.

Rounding out the competition will be the crowd-pleasing Elizabeth, New Jersey, Polish Falcon Cadets and Connecticut's New Haven Emerald Cadets.

This year the Kingston Indians have finished third, first, fourth and second place in that order.

Lions Gift To Indians

Zena Fete

ZENA
The Zena Fire Company (Woodstock No. 4) will hold its annual bazaar on Friday, July 18, and Saturday, July 19, at the fire house located at the intersection of Zena and Sawkill Roads.

The bazaar will offer a flea market, games, prizes, food, drink, and fun for everyone, officials said.

This year the fire company put a new "mini-pumper" truck into service. The small truck, exceptionally maneuverable, is ideal for the Zena-Woodstock area, officials said. A major portion of the $15,000 cost has been provided by proceeds of past bazaars, they noted.

Firemen expressed their appreciation for the continued support of the community.

Classes Expanded

NEW PALTZ
Ulster County BOCES classes for trainable mentally retarded (TMR) children will be expanded from three to four in the coming school year.

BOCES officials announced that two of the four classes will be located in the Marbletown Elementary School in Stone Ridge. The move represents the first step in integrating TMR classes into regular schools of the cooperating districts.

The change reflects recommendations from a task force reporting to Dr. Jack L. Roosa, BOCES chief administrator, that TMR classes be integrated into existing regular schools in the county. In the past, children designated as TMR have been educated in segregated facilities in a three-room school in Rosendale.

The recommendation concurs with current emphasis in the State Education Department on "mainstreaming," providing education to children with handicapping conditions in as normalized a setting as possible.

The task force was composed of representatives of each of the eight BOCES component districts in the county. For the study, the task force was temporarily expanded to include parents and teachers of TMR children from the BOCES program, the Kingston City Schools Consolidated, and the Ulster County Association for Retarded Children.

Bridge Reports

The New York State Bridge Authority reports that traffic and revenues for the first six months of 1975 are showing a recovery from decreases reported in 1974.

The largest traffic increase, 14.23 percent, was posted by the Bear Mountain Bridge. Leading the five spans in both traffic and revenue was the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, with 4,254,376 crossings and receipts of $1,524,093. The second busiest bridge was the Mid-Hudson Bridge, with 3,146,482 crossings.

Milton Zwickel, bridge authority chairman, noted that June was the second consecutive month in which each of the five bridges reported more traffic in 1975 than in 1973. Four of the five also reported higher revenues in June, 1975, than in the same month two years earlier. Only the Rip Van Winkle Bridge took in less cash than in 1973.

Zwickel pointed out that the 12 percent increase for the Bear Mountain Bridge in June was more than twice the increase of any other bridge. He attributed this to the shift of traffic to Bear Mountain from the Tappan Zee Bridge, which raised its tolls in May.

Receipts Are Down

KINGSTON
City parking receipts were down by about five percent for the month of June compared to the month of May, according to the monthly report issued by City Treasurer Francis H. Law.

Total receipts in June were $6,273.66 as compared to $6,574.67 for May.

June receipts were realized from $4,630.46 at the Uptown Parking Garage with another $1,643.20 for metered parking.

Average receipts for the first half of the year were just under $6,600 per month for an estimated yearly take of over $78,000. The city budgeted $75,000 in parking receipts in January.

Best month so far was April with a total of $7,489.91.

Many Awards For Rondout Valley Students

STONE RIDGE
Being designated for awards is nothing new to two recent Rondout Valley High School graduates.

Jenifer Barthel, valedictorian of the class of 1975, attained a four-year average of 93.47 percent and John McCarty, salutatorian, had an average of 92.98 percent. Both were winners of New York State Regents Scholarships.

Jenifer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Barthel of Kerhonkson. Among her many awards are the Balfour Award, French Club Award, Rondout Valley Scholarship Fund Award, and membership in the National Honor Society. She has also earned a choir block letter, block letters in cheerleading, and awards in skiing and swimming. Jenifer's school activities have been numerous; senior class representative, math team, senior play, French club, choir, monitoring, and senior seminar.

An active participant in athletic competition, Jenifer has been a member of the gymnastics team, ski team, and taken part in intramural sports. In addition, she has been active in Explorer's Club, swim team, bicycling, hiking, and has taken piano lessons and an educational trip to Europe.

Prior to her senior year, Jenifer completed a science course at Ulster County Community College. She plans college studies in mathematics and science, with future professional training in the field of medicine. Jenifer has been accepted at Harpur College, SUNY, Cortland, University of Vermont, Smith College, alternate at Dartmouth College, and Cornell University. She plans to attend Cornell.

McCarty transferred to Rondout Valley from Yonkers at the beginning of his junior year. He is the son of Mrs. Ruth McCarty of High Falls.

Recipient of a National Merit Foundation Letter of Commendation, John has participated in senior seminar, math club, and the Rondout chapter of the National Honor Society.

John applied to and has been accepted at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Clarks-on, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, all with financial aid grants. He plans to enter MIT in September, and is interested in a career in the electronics field.

Leader of the Year Award

Mrs. Judy Studt (L), junior leader of Troop 21, Chambers School, receives the 12th annual Leader of the Year Award of the Ulster-Hurley Girl Scout Neighborhood from Mrs. Phyllis Wolffield, retiring neighborhood chairman. Mrs. Studt was a Brownie leader and will continue as a Junior leader in addition to her new post as neighborhood chairman. The award is given to a leader who follows the ideals and goals of Girl Scouting "above and beyond the call of duty." (Freeman photo)

Day Camp Session

KINGSTON
Girl Scouts of all ages, as well as non-Scouts, are boarding their buses to Katrina, a Day Camp sponsored by the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts located on the Harry Siemson property in Sawkill. Program for the day's activities includes the usual nature, Indian lore, and primitive outdoor skills, with special emphasis this year on heritage and colonial American life. The girls are learning skills that would have been necessary for life in the 1775-76 era.

Joan Bojman, camp director, has announced the following Katrina staff assignments: Unit leaders are Cathy Holmes, Woodstock; Peggy Spadafora and Joan Walker, both of Lake Katrine; Betty Lovey, Hurley; Debbie King, Dorothy Mack, and Rae Maouris, all of Kingston. Assistant leaders are Beth Partridge, Kingston; Lorraine Linder and Ann Boughton of Lake Katrine; and Program Aides are Michele Lovy and Jane Spadafora. Business manager is Ila Mongillo of Lake Katrine; Site Manager is Marge Brown of Kingston; and Camp Nurse is Arlene Breitung of Saugerties.

Katrina Day Camp sessions are held Monday through Thursday July 21-24. Bus routes go through Kingston, Hurley, Zena, Saugerties, Mt. Marion and Sawkill. If there is a demand, buses can also stop at Ruby, East Kingston, Whittier, Glasco, and Glasco Turnpike.

Registration forms are available at the Girl Scout Office, 411 Washington Avenue, Kingston.

Area Educators Named to SUNY Posts

Two educators from the Mid-Hudson area have been named by State University Chancellor Ernest L. Boyer to be members of a recently created University Commission on Purposes and Priorities.

Named to the 21-member commission were John J. Connolly, president of Dutchess Community College, and Douglas Baker, associate professor of biology at the State University College at New Paltz.

Connolly and Baker are among the eight faculty members, five presidents, six students and two other administrators who represent 18 state university campuses. The commission will be chaired by Dr. James F. Kelly, executive vice chancellor of the university, and will hold its first meeting in Albany on Thursday, July 17.

"The commission will conduct a thorough self-appraisal over the next 12 months and give an initial report to the Board of Trustees by Sept. 30, 1975, so the first step in this university-wide examination can be reflected in the fiscal plans for the coming academic year," Boyer said in announcing the appointments. During the next 12 months the State University of New York will conduct a thorough self-appraisal," Boyer said. "The university itself will initiate and direct this study, first because it is the rational way to plan, and also because a university must control its own destiny within the resources made available by the state. "The goal is to improve the university structure now in place, maintaining an educationally diversified, low cost, high quality public institution, fully accessible to the citizens of the state."

Sen. Mason Hits The House

HOBART
A move which would lead to spending $75,000 for the construction of a house for the president of the Agricultural and Technical College at Delhi has been criticized by State Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th).

"I am absolutely opposed to providing lavish houses at public expense for any educator, anywhere, under any circumstances," he said.

"Furnishing houses to college presidents does not in any way contribute to the education of the students and it is a very unjust burden for the state's taxpayers who have to foot the bill. They are already oppressed by the heaviest taxes in the entire U.S."

"We should lose no time in disposing of all college presidents' houses regardless of where they are located. They should be sold and put back on the tax rolls," Mason said.

The senator said he had contacted Governor Hugh Carey recommending these houses be disposed of and saying "it is a most inopportune time to spend public money on fancy houses for educators so they can live in the grand manner, while public employees are being laid off and vital projects are being discontinued."

Mason said "some of our educators have developed very expensive tastes for the good things of life but there is no reason why we should permit them to be indulged at taxpayer expense."

A one-line item in the January state budget listed an appropriation of $75,000 for "acquisition of property for the president's residence at the Agricultural and Technical College at Delhi."

Mauriello Is Tabbed

NEWBURGH
State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn (R-40th Dist.) has endorsed Andrew Mauriello for chairman of the Orange County Republican Committee.

Mauriello has been staff attorney for Schermerhorn for the past four years. Schermerhorn was elected to the Senate in 1970.

"Andy has been my close friend and legal advisor prior to my election to the New York State Senate," Schermerhorn wrote the GOP committee on July 8. "He has also served as my attorney here in Albany for the past four years."

"It will be a great loss to me, but I feel that it will be in the best interests of the Republican Party in Orange County for Andy to be free of any connection with any political office or public official should he be successful. Our past association has been a very productive and enjoyable experience and I regret having to make this decision."

Schermerhorn has had his political difficulties in Orange County. He challenged the Republican nominee the first two times he won, knocking off the incumbent Clinton Dominick the first time and defeating Anthony Barrone in 1972. Last year he was the party's nominee but was taken to a primary by Helmut Kemple whom he easily defeated.

Schermerhorn said he would announce after the primary who he will name to replace Mauriello on his staff, assuming Mauriello wins.

Library In Danger

ELLENVILLE
"Further cuts, or reverting to the 1975 budget, will require drastic cuts in hours and service," stated Ellenville Public Library director Marion Dumond regarding the library budget.

The proposed 1976 budget will be re-submitted to voters July 23 along with the school district budget, it was announced by the board of trustees of the Ellenville Public Library and Museum.

According to law, a school district public library has no allowance for increased utility rates nor for the full year's operating costs of the increased space. While other areas have increased in cost, most increases are in utilities, she said.

In Ellenville, said Mrs. Dumond, the 1975 budget includes no allowance for increased utility rates nor for the full year's operating costs of the increased space. While other areas have increased in cost, most increases are in utilities, she said.

Cutbacks being considered if approval is not gained include restriction of hours from 63 to the summer schedule of 46 year round, with no Saturday hours; and limitations on some special services such as the time-consuming inter-library loan service. There were more than 2,000 special book requests in 1974, with 1,938 borrowed for patrons.

Mason said he had been informed the item had been deleted in the interests of austerity "but," he said "it apparently slipped through and was passed."

The matter surfaced last week when a State University memo requesting change in the budget language to permit use of the $65,000 for construction of a house rather than the purchase of an existing home came to light. The memo explained that State University and Delhi Tech staffers had failed to come up with a suitable house in the Delhi area. "I suppose," the Senator said — "they haven't been able to locate anything fancy enough."

"I am absolutely opposed to this scheme. There is no limit when the State University starts to build. The people who run the university appear to be totally devoid of common sense and their extravagant spending policies are well-known."

Mason says acquisition of a home shouldn't be the state's business in any case.

"The presidents of our state colleges receive very adequate salaries which run from $32,000 per year to more than $60,000," he said. "They are well able to provide their own residences."

"The president at Delhi receives a salary of $33,525 plus a $1,000 expense account, use of a state car and numerous other 'fringe benefits.'"

The senator said his statement is not a reflection of Dr. Hennessy, current president of Delhi Tech. "He is an able educator whom I respect very highly," Mason said. "But educators should not be furnished houses at taxpayer expense — they ought to pay their own way."

"These fancy residences are mere symbols of affluence," the Senator charged. "They produce nothing of educational value and they are an affront to the overloaded taxpayers who support the State University."

Concerned Citizens Find Black Creek 'An Ironic Issue'

TOWN OF LLOYD
Concerned Citizens of Highland (CCOH), an organization created under the threat of nuclear development in the Town of Lloyd, doesn't seem particularly concerned that Black Creek has apparently been lost as a potential ally.

It remains the organization's general belief that no utility in its right mind would design, build and operate an atomic power plant at the 2,300 acre Lloyd site.

"It's really kind of ironic," said CCOH member Shirley Brand, "we never got that involved with the Black Creek issue. The sportsmen did most of the work. But people automatically assumed that it was our project, that we were only involved with Black Creek to stop the power plant."

Legislation passed the state senate and assembly this year which would have included Black Creek in the state's Wild, Scenic and Recreational Rivers System; the "scenic" designation proposed for an 8.6 mile section of the stream would have placed stringent restrictions on development within a mile-wide corridor along the creek. Part of the 2,300 acre site currently under study by the Atomic and Space Development Authority (ASDA) would have fallen within the corridor.

Gov. Hugh Carey, however, vetoed the legislation. It is now believed that the Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) will propose a shorter, five-mile section of the stream for scenic designation, a section which presumably would not infringe upon the ASDA site.

"As it stands now, the new proposal won't have that great of an impact on the Lloyd site," Ms. Brand commented, "but I don't think it means that much. I just can't believe that a utility is going to be developing that site anyway."

It is Ms. Brand's contention that ASDA originally purchased the Lloyd site with expectations that Consolidated Edison (Con Ed) would use it for nuclear generation. But she believes that Con Ed's recent financial difficulties—coupled with the announced plans of the Power Authority of the State of New York (PASNY) to build a nuclear plant in Greene County which would supply power to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority—has eliminated the New York City utility as a potential occupant of the Lloyd site.

"It would be very expensive to build a power plant at Lloyd," she said, "and there are some very serious questions about the geologic surveys that ASDA has done there. I just don't think that a utility will be willing to commit large amounts of money to build at Lloyd, especially when there are better sites available."

Ms. Brand is less convinced, however, that ASDA didn't actively lobby against the Black Creek Designation. "A lot of wild stories have been spread about what might happen if Black Creek receives a scenic designation," she said, "I think ASDA is responsible for a lot of the pressure that was placed on Carey and the other legislators."

According to Cloin Robertson, ASDA's director of siting, that is not true. "We did not oppose the designation," he said, "we took exactly the position the Governor did—that the designation was happening a little too fast and that the people weren't being presented with the possible consequences."

"In fact, we put out a memo-random to all of the legislators from that area—and I assume it went to the Governor's office as well—indicating that we supported an appropriate designation for Black Creek, in particular that area north of Chodkee Lake. But we still believe that the people should be informed of all the consequences of a scenic designation."

The original designation was opposed by both the Lloyd Town Board and the Highland Chamber of Commerce. The revised section of Black Creek now under consideration for a scenic designation runs from the railroad bridge near Floyd Ackert Road to an area just south of Chodkee Lake, and lies almost exclusively in the Town of Esopus. The bulk of ASDA's 2,300 acre site is situated in the neighboring Town of Lloyd.

'Slumlord' Action in Woodstock

By Tobie Geertsema

WOODSTOCK
Slumlords and all that derogatory appellation implies is more normally associated with the squalor of ghetto tenements than with the quiet valleys of the Catskills. But, in announcing a September public hearing on "one of the most important documents in Woodstock in many years," Supervisor Verner May made it clear at Tuesday night's town board meeting that the board will take action to eliminate slumlords' in Woodstock.

May said the board has been concerned "for quite some time about what's happening with various buildings within the town." Primarily within the village center, he noted, buildings are being "transformed into apartments or rooming houses without adequate inspection." May and other board members see this trend of adding more people under the confines of one building as compounding Woodstock's sewage problem, as well as adding to its welfare burden.

"We have creeping I-don't-know-what," said May, "but creeping whatever it is, those buildings are not adequate from fire and health standards."

try," said it would stringently define such words as "owner," "occupant," and "family;" would spell out exactly what is required spacewise for what number of people; would be specific in the matter of toilet facilities necessary; would set tight standards.

"It will be," he said, "an ordinance that says, 'If you're going to do business of this type in Woodstock, there are certain standards you must adhere to. Otherwise, don't do it!'"

If and when the ordinance becomes law, it will require thorough inspection before a building can be added to or partitioned into smaller rooms or apartments.

At Tuesday's meeting, the board also:

- Adopted an Electrical Inspection Ordinance (taking effect immediately) for the town and created the position of electrical inspector to report directly to the chief building inspector on electrical wiring of new buildings.

- Adopted an amendment to the zoning ordinance authorizing the planning board to consider cluster development in the future as a means of preserving the natural scenic qualities of land being developed for housing projects.

- Approved a bond anticipation note of $12,500 for the purchase of a 1975 Ford dump truck for the town's highway department, and authorized the advertisement of bids for a 1976 Ford four wheel drive pickup truck for the same department.

- Announced that applications are being accepted to fill a vacancy on the volunteer, unpaid Assessment Review Board created by the resignation of William Ruddell; for the paid position of building inspector and zoning enforcement officer created by the resignation of George Eichler; and for the paid position of town constable, created by the resignation of Ross Van Wagenen.

Four Injured in Dutchess

RED HOOK

Four northern Dutchess County youths were hospitalized early today after the car in which they were riding ran off River Road in the Town of Red Hook and slammed into a utility pole.

Rhinebeck State Police, who investigated the mishap, identified the injured as George Rickman, the driver, 16, of Red Hook, and passengers John Jimenez, 16, and Francis Rowan, 19, both of Red Hook, and Ralph Choinisky, 17, of Tivoli.

All four of the youths were taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck following the crash. Choinisky, reportedly suffering from head injuries, was later transferred to Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie. Condition reports on the injured were not immediately available from the hospitals.

State police said Rickman has been charged with driving while intoxicated, speeding and with being an unlicensed operator.

In Kingston, meanwhile, a woman driver was hospitalized following a collision involving four cars shortly before 1 p.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Maiden Lane and Fair Street.

Heidi Zahn, 19, of 16 North Wilbur Avenue, taken from the scene of the crash by Doctor's Ambulance, was listed in fair condition today at Benedictine Hospital.

According to police, a car operated by Gary Mazzetti, 21, of 47 Fairmont Avenue was going north on Maiden Lane when it went through a stop sign and was in collision with the Zahn vehicle, which in turn was in collision with two parked cars.

Police said Mazzetti told them his gas pedal stuck and he was unable to stop at the intersection. No tickets were issued.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

Ellenville State Police charged three occupants of a car involved in a crash Tuesday night with sixth degree criminal possession of a controlled substance after a quantity of alleged marijuana was found by a trooper who arrived to investigate the crash.

Arrested were the driver of the auto, Dane Lister, 18, of South Fallsburg, and passengers Robert Rosner, 21, and Brian Tekulsky, 19, both of New Paltz. They were jailed in lieu of $1,500 bail each following arraignment.

Troopers said the vehicle ran off Lawrence Hill Road in Accord at about 6 p.m. and struck a tree, resulting in minor injuries to those in the car.

In the Town of Saugerties, the death of Frank Augustine Jr., 71, whose body was found lying near his residence Tuesday afternoon, has been ruled as natural toll wing an autopsy.

Saugerties Town Police began an investigation after Augustine's body was found near his house trailer on Ralph Vedder Road by a neighbor's child at about 12:30 p.m.

However, an autopsy showed Augustine died of a heart attack, according to Coroner William Keyser, who issued the natural death ruling.

***
In Jeffersonville, Sullivan County, a search was underway today for a 27-year-old man whose clothes were found on the banks of a stream after he turned up missing while attempting to retrieve several ducks which had strayed from their enclosure.

State police said they are attempting to find Glen A. Hutler, who they said is a non-swimmer.

***
In Poughkeepsie, investigation continued today into a fire early Monday which resulted in the death of a man now identified as Clifton Brown, of 131 Garden Street. Police said Brown, whose age was not known, was also known as Ernest Wilson and George Brown.

Hinchey Reviews State Session

By Carl Graham

STONE RIDGE
This year's third-longest session of the State Legislature solved many problems but left many others hanging, according to Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.).

Speaking to the Town of Marlborough Democratic Club, Hinchey reviewed the legislative session just ended, speculated on the fate of several unsolved problems, and answered questions from the capacity audience in the Marlborough Town Hall.

Aid given to New York City performed an important function by protecting the city's bond rating, the Saugerties legislator said. Failure of the city's bonds could start a chain reaction, imperiling state bonds and "Bringing on the kind of panic that brought on the Depression in the 1930's," he said.

Hinchey also praised legislators for dealing decisively with the problem of steeply rising costs for medical malpractice insurance. "If doctors had not had medical malpractice insurance (after June 30) many would have gone out of practice," he said.

Reviewing the state's budgetary problems, he said "I don't know how much the deficit is—I don't think anyone does." Unemployment is still going up and expiration of benefits will mean sharp increases in welfare costs for the state, he predicted.

"The governor is asking for more than $800 million in additional taxes, with $410 million coming from gasoline taxes," he said. "That's devastating to upstate—that's the only way to travel up here."

Hinchey said that revenues are below expectations, further complicating budgetary problems. State aid to education poses another problem, he said. "Last year the state put more than $340 million into aid to education (in an election year), he said. "There was one serious catch—only $75 million of it came from last year's budget—the rest came from this year's budget."

Hinchey said that from his admittedly biased viewpoint many good bills were passed in the assembly and defeated in the senate. He said he was happy to have co-sponsored a bill to repeal the fair trade laws, which he said put cost of nationally advertised brands higher in New York than in states where the laws have been repealed.

Speaking of another of his legislative projects, a bill to extend the life of the Temporary Commission to Study the Catskills, Hinchey said "I'm not sure if people even want it. I may take another crack at it if I can detect any strong support from the public."

Many of the questions from the audience dealt with differences between the New York metropolitan area and upstate.

"The state government did not provide any money for New York City this year," Hinchey pointed out. "All the city got was the right to raise taxes."

He speculated on possible state adoption of a zero-base budget such as the one adopted in Georgia. As he explained it, "with zero base, you don't assume that what was spent last year has to be spent this year. You build a budget from zero, not from where you left off last year." The conversion to such a budget would be "a big job, but it can be done," according to Hinchey.

In the regular business meeting, Marlborough Democrats set their caucus for 8 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 4, in the town hall to select candidates for supervisor, councilman (three), superintendent of highways, assessor (two) and town clerk.

Ludlow Declares

ACCORD
Charles (Chuck) Ludlow of Accord, has announced his intention to seek the Republican nomination for supervisor of the Town of Rochester.

A 16-year resident of the area, he was manager of administrative services at Channel Master Division in Ellenville. Active in community affairs, he serves as a member and past chairman of the town's Zoning Board of Appeals, as a member of the Rondout Valley School Board and Accord Volunteer Fire Company.

Ludlow and his wife, Kathryn are parents of four children.

In making the announcement, Ludlow said he is "very much interested in the town's future while maintaining the rural character that is so important to all its citizens."

Turck Returns to the Strand

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON
Louis Turck's controversial career as city dog catcher seems to have ended and he has returned from whence he came: the city sewage treatment plant on the Strand.

Turck was notified by Mayor Francis R. Koenig on Friday that he had failed a Civil Service examination for permanent appointment to what was a $145 a week job plus $125 per month for the use of his truck.

Sewage plant superintendent Jules Albertini says he feels sorry for Turck but is nonetheless "real glad to have him back."

"He's a good worker," said Albertini. "A REALLY good worker," Albertini says of his "new man" but he's none too happy with the vehicle for his return.

"Those (Civil Service) exams are unfair," maintains Albertini who says he's seen such "unfairness" worked against his regular staff. "They don't pertain to what the man does on the job. I've got a maintenance man down here I wouldn't trade for anything. He's super. The best. But he didn't pass the exam. Fortunately he's got a few more tries."

Turck didn't feel like talking about his experiences with Civil Service exams, after failing two of them and apparently losing his job as a result.

"I like the job," he said. "I took it when the city was over-run with dogs (in November of 1971). I felt I did a good job. I'd like to go back."

In the meantime, Albertini is just as happy to have him back at the plant. "I had to put him on as a laborer. It was the only opening we had. I'm glad to have him back in any capacity." Turck is paid at the daily rate of $26.95.

With Turck's departure, the city is left with one dog catcher, Michael Cooper, Turck's former assistant.

City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco says he doesn't know what the immediate future holds for the dog catching department. It is believed that a list has been established by the Civil Service Commission but all such inquiries to that commission are met with "that's off the record."

There is very little of the activities of the city's Civil Service department that is on the record, freedom of information laws notwithstanding.

The commission publicly advertises tests for jobs but refuses to reveal who took the test. When a so-called "eligible list"—three or more persons passing the exam—is established, that is supposed to be public record. Often times what occurs is only one or two persons passes the exam and since there is no "eligible list" there are no announcements.

Whether or not Turck comes back is apparently up to the Civil Service Commission although it is believed that in the case of a probationary appointment (pending an exam) such as Turck's, a person has to pass the test on the second attempt or else relinquish his position.

Turck, during a career that spanned almost four years, had little difficulty with dogs—he was known both for his conscientious pursuit of his duties and his compassion for his charges—it was people that gave him trouble.

Turck was continually at odds with city officials who expected him "to be every place at once" in a city equal in square mileage of Poughkeepsie and Newburgh combined.

Manpower and equipment weren't Turck's only gripes. He also wanted broader authority to arrest the owners of delinquent and stray dogs. "It's the people and not the dogs that cause all the problems," he used to say.

Mid-Hudson Rose Society Bicentennial Rose Garden

The first public rose garden planted on the grounds of the Senate House Museum, in the heart of historic Kingston, was dedicated at a brief ceremony recently. Among those present were Mayor Francis Koenig, Jim Gold site superintendent of the Senate House Museum and James R. Burke Jr., Chairman of the Bicentennial Rose Garden Committee of the Mid-

Hudson Rose Society. Twelve members of this committee also attended the dedication. Mr. Burke spoke briefly, dedicating this garden to Kingston and all its residents plus everyone in the mid-Hudson area.

Anteo Marchetti, finance chairman of the committee, extended his appreciation to all those responsible for making this project possible. Contributors include IBM; Kingston Rotary; Kingston Garden Center; Clossi's Agway in Lake Katrine; Kelders Nursery; Accord Agway; Red Hook Agway; Hurley Peat; plus the following merchants in the Plaza: Grand Union; Norge Cleaners; Uncle Chick's; Loeb-Rhoades; Richard the First and Herzog's.

Without continued support by interested

Mid-Hudson businesses, organizations and private individuals, the planned extensive gardens will be impossible to attain. These plans incorporate a number of ideas involving numerous gardens on a variety of areas on the Senate House grounds and also include the hope of having some old garden rose varieties which would undoubtedly have been found growing within the Stockade area during the 1700's.

There are currently 19 members on this Bicentennial Rose Garden committee and each one of them has given a great deal of time and effort to bring this project to its present point.

Especially important is this first garden. It contains 20 red blend floribunda rose bushes, named "Bicentennial" and donated to the Mid-Hudson Rose Society by Star Roses — Conard Pyle; West Grove, Pa. Additional garden sites will be prepared this Fall and the roses will be planted in the spring of 1976. A public "Open-Garden" dedication ceremony is planned for the Summer of 1976, date to be announced later. Anyone interested in joining is welcome to attend the monthly meetings, held on the fourth Wednesday of each month except July and August at 8 p.m. at the Heritage Savings Bank, Bonanza Branch, Albany Avenue Extension Kingston.

Annual Picnic

The annual picnic of the Saugerties Society of Little Gardens was held recently at the home of Mrs. Roy Helmsmoortel. Mrs. Helmsmoortel was assisted by Mrs. John Washburn, Mrs. Olav Sande and Mrs. William Everts.

Reports were given to the recent Flower Show presented by the Society.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, Sept. 10 at the home of Miss Jane Ziegler.

'Sister George' To Open At Hyde Park

Abraxas Resident Theatre Company continues its '75 summer season with "The Killing of Sister George", which opens at the Hyde Park Playhouse on Thursday. In the world of Soap Opera, Sister George is a good samaritan bringing cheer and comfort to the citizenry of "Applehurst". In her private life though, George is a gin drinking, hard swearing, sadistic lesbian. The BBC finally decides that Sister George is better off dead and runs her over with a 10 ton truck.

Martha Kearns has the title role in this searingly funny comedy by Frank Marcus. Last year's audiences will remember Martha as Nurse Ratchett in "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and audiences of this season have already been introduced to her as Stella in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Performances of "The Killing of Sister George" at the Hyde Park Playhouse are scheduled Thursday through Sunday, July 20 and Thursday, July 24 through Sunday July 27. Performances begin at 8 p.m. except Sunday performances which begin at 7 p.m. Ticket information may be obtained by contacting the Playhouse.

SRO Greets Ballet Workshop At Woodstock Playhouse Monday

By Dorothy A. Narel

WOODSTOCK

Once again Jacques D'Amboise and four stars from the New York City Ballet played to a "sold out" house Monday night in Woodstock Playhouse. D'Amboise and his dancers are currently appearing at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center and, with Mondays off, he consented to do the engagement for Harris Gordon, producer and executive director of the local summer theatre.

The evening's program was announced entirely from the stage by the star performer. D'Amboise's on-stage personality is warm and friendly and he delivers his technical explanations with a touch of humor. Appearing with him were Coleen Neary, Krya Nichols, Christine Redpath and Francis Sackett. The pianist was Jerry Zimmerman.

The program, Ballet Encounter, is essentially a ballet workshop with D'Amboise outlining themes and choreography. He is particularly informed about the School of Ballet since he stated taking lessons at the tender age of eight. At 12, D'Amboise was already performing with the Ballet Society, a collaboration of George Balanchine and Lincoln Kirstein and the immediate predecessor of the New York City Ballet.

The strenuous discipline of ballet was emphasized in the major workshop session during the evening. The format included Coleen Neary as the "student" and D'Amboise, the instructor. They worked on a segment from the Apollo pas de deux choreography for which was done by Balanchine to Stravinsky's music. These dancers exhibited such coordination and control of movement never once sacrificing elegance or poetic dance form. The rapidity with which Miss Neary "learned" was astounding and the final product — the excerpt danced without interruption — was beautiful. Christine Redpath did variations from the Apollo also.

In another outstanding portion of the evening's program, dancers re-emphasized the fact they possess a sensitivity to fantasy. There is always such a clear ballet dialogue between them and it was aptly demonstrated by Christine Redpath and D'Amboise in their performance of An Afternoon of a Faun by Debussy. The work is both beautiful and melancholy but full of tenderness and languorous movements. Its very beauty makes it a difficult work to perform.

Christine Redpath later joined D'Amboise in the Gershwin and Balanchine ballet done to the music of Embraceable You. Miss Redpath also performed the Emeralds variations from Jewels, a popular classical ballet which Balanchine choreographed to music by Faure.

Krya Nichols and Francis Sackett danced an excerpt from Sarabande, the choreography for which was done by D'Amboise himself to the music of Debussy and Ravel. A pas de deux from Midsummer's Night Dream was danced by Coleen Neary and D'Amboise while Krya Nichols danced a variation to music by Tchaikovsky. It was a number that was originally written for Swan Lake but never used.

In his conversations with the audience (opening up these sessions for questions D'Amboise discussed his personal life and career by saying:

"So here you are at the end . . . the end (age-wise) of your career and really what do you know?" He was referring to his own early entrance to ballet studies and the necessity to take a high school equivalency test. But D'Amboise has little recourse to any "grief" for he is a very successful dancer. He was given a part of one of the brothers in Seven Brides for Seven Brothers and has been critically acclaimed for his performances. He created roles in Balanchine's Western Symphony, Stars and Stripes, Episodes, Figures in the Carpet, A Midsummer Night's Dream and Raymonda Variations. He has many TV credits and his other film appearances were made in Carousel, The Best Things in Life are Free and a movie version of Balanchine's A Midsummer Night's Dream.

D'Amboise has one opinion about working in the Seven Brides film — "It's a disaster!" The lack of scheduling, disregard for starting times finally moved him to leave the production.

"I was told to be ready at 8 p.m. I was there at 7 a.m. I warmed up. Around 9 a.m. the stage hands would walk in with large Danishes and coffee. I was still warming up. A little later, dancers arrived but they didn't practice. In the meantime I'm still warming up."

"Around 10:30 a.m. we start the dance sequence, broke for lunch at 12. Four months later we finally started shooting the sequence. I just couldn't take it — I left."

D'Amboise is married to Carolyn George, a former soloist with the New York City Ballet. He is the father of two sons and twin daughters.

How Apollo-Soyuz was timed.

On this flight the Astronauts and Cosmonauts timed something besides their own positions . . . they timed the arrival of another spacecraft and a crucial docking that signified one of the finest moments in history. The Omega Speedmaster has been standard flight equipment for Astronauts (and on this flight for Cosmonauts) since 1965 because it proved to be the only Chronograph that could withstand NASA's gruelling pre-flight tests.

'A Day in Old Kipsbergen'

Wayne Nelmes, left, and Robert Hitt, all decked out in colonial-styled costumes, were a reminder of early times when Rhinecliff was called Kipsbergen after the founding brother Kip-Hendrick and Jacob — who were Dutch settlers in the mid-17th Century.

Nellie Mergendall is having the time of her life as she prepares her wares for residents and visitors to Rhinecliff's Kipsbergen Day last Saturday. The day was launched at 10 a.m. with a parade led by the Fife and Drum Corps., and closed with a concert by the Legion Band. In between there were plenty of things to do including sales of homemade baked goods, refreshments, arts and crafts exhibits.

St. Remy Man Cuts Second Record Album

Marc Johnson, a 1965 graduate of Kingston High School, has been helping the Shenendehowa Middle School B eighth and ninth grade chorus, concert band and stage band to achieve a record.

The record won't be found among the pages of the famous Guinness Book of World Records, but it is finding its way into many homes.

You see, this record is actually a two-record LP album — the second, in fact, in the past two years.

Johnson, son of Mrs. Minna Johnson and the late Pual Johnson of St. Remy, is chorus director at the Shenendehowa school district, near Clifton Park, in upstate New York.

The St. Remy resident has teamed with Dominick Rinaldi band director and Nate Schwartz, recording engineer, in cutting this second album.

"We Shall Overcome," is the title of the latest album. Last year, the band and chorus members, with the help of Johnson, Rinaldi and Schwartz, produced a single LP, "Born to Be Free." Last year's success triggered the repeat project this year.

According to Johnson, the Shenendehowa students spent three days recording their 1975 album. As each piece was taped, it was played back to affirm its quality or to note any possible imperfections. If this developed, another take was made for the recording.

After this, another seven days or so were spent mixing and editing the tapes, incorporating them into a final "master tape," Johnson explained. The finished product, in addition to some printed information for the jacket of the album was then forwarded to a record pressing firm in Tennessee.

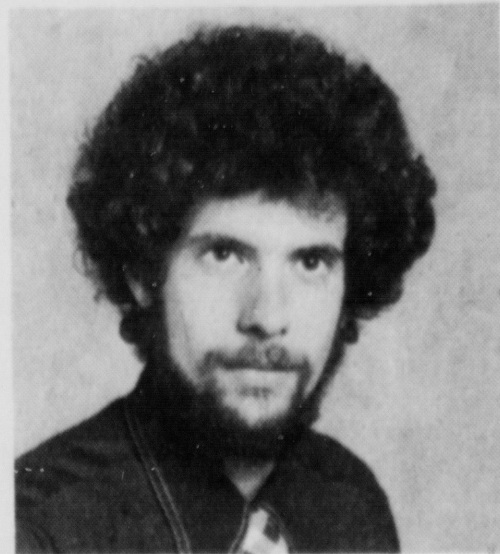

Marc Johnson was quick to explain that the school makes no profit on the record sales with the cost of the entire project being underwritten through sales alone.

Songs and musical scores for "We Shall Overcome" were selected by both Johnson and Rinaldi in addition to the participating students.

The concert band selections include "The Sting," "Variation Overture" and "Barnum and Bailey Favorites." Among the stage band pieces in the album are "Spinning Wheel," "Pink Panther" and "The Continental."

"Proud Mary," "Eres Tu," "Because" and "My Girl," an arrangement done by Johnson especially for the chorus are included in the chorus works.

Johnson, who continued his education after leaving Kingston High School, graduated from Potsdam in 1969. He is married to the former Joan Laht of East Rochester. They have one son, Eric.

Area Couples' Weddings Announced

McGowan-Vetere

Donna Marie McGowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McGowan of 241 Salem Street, Port Ewen, exchanged nuptial vows with Michael Francis Vetere Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Vetere Sr. of 235 Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

The Rev. Patrick McGarraty CSSR of Mt. St. Alphonsus of Esopus officiated at the ceremony at Presentation Church, Port Ewen. Wayne Cusher, organist, accompanied Nadine Woinoski who sang wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Frank J. Tiano, the bride chose a gown of French satin-backed crepe in pale ecru, fashioned with a fitted bodice, high, sheer yoked neckline, and long, tapered Elizabethan sleeves. Venise lace braid trimmed the stand-up collar and sleeves. Similar lace braid encircled the Empire waistline and bordered the hemline which swept back to form an attached chapel train.

Nadine McGowan of Port Ewen was maid of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Teresa Ferraro and Maripat Reis, both of Kingston.

Francis Vetere of Kingston was best man. Ushering were Ronald Vetere of Kingston and Donald Mike McGowan of Port Ewen.

A reception was given at Holiday Inn, Kingston.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1972, attended UCCC, and is employed by the Dental Group, North Front Street, Kingston. Her husband, a 1969 alumnus of KHS, attended UCCC, and was graduated from State University of New York at Alfred, class of 1973. He is employed by New York State Department of Transportation, and is a member of Musicians Union Local 215. The couple will reside at 99 Hurley Avenue, Kingston.

Hyde-Lane

Georgia May Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hyde of Route 2, Box 253, Kingston, became the bride of Harry Warren Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lane of Spring Lake Trailer Park, Kingston.

The Rev. Abraham deVries officiated at the ceremony at Old Dutch Church in Kingston. Terry B. Earles, organist, provided wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a traditional white gown in the Empire A-line styling enhanced with Chantilly lace motifs. The cuffs of her semi-bishop sleeves were of matching lace. Similar motifs bordered the hemline and centered her chapel length train.

Denise E. Hogan of Medford, N.J., was maid of honor. Eleanor Glynn and Anne Merz, both of Kingston, served as attendants, and Barbara Pentz of Kingston was flower girl.

Gary Davis of Kingston served as best man. Ushers were Drew Wonderly and John Thomas, both of Kingston. Jerry Reuss of Ulster Park was ringbearer.

A reception was given at Moose Lodge Hall, Prince Street, Kingston.

The bride, a graduate of Kingston High School, is employed by F. L. Russell Corp. Mt. Marion. The bridegroom, attended Beacon High School and is co-owner of H 32 K Powerwest Service Station, Kingston.

The couple will reside at Spring Lake Trailer Park, Lot 19, Kingston.

Showers Given for Prospective Brides

Miss Wynn Leone of New Paltz was guest of honor at a surprise bridal shower Saturday, June 28 at Villa Carmella Restaurant in Kingston. The party was hosted by Mrs. Jeanette Leone of Spring Lake Trailer Park.

Miss Leone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Leone of New Paltz. She will become the bride of Daniel McSweeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McSweeney of New Paltz, on July 19.

Guests attending included Mrs. Fran McSweeney, Miss Katey McSweeney, Mrs. Agnes McGivern, Mrs. Irene McGivern, Mrs. Vince Leone, Miss Jeanette Leone, all of New Paltz; Mrs. Joe Peruso of Kingston, Mrs. Phyllis DeCancia of Rosendale.

Gifts were received also from relatives and friends unable to attend.

Miss Dayle Matson, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Matson of Henry Street Kingston, was guest of honor at a bridal shower June 22 at American Legion Hall. Hostess was her sister, Mrs. James DiSanto.

Miss Matson received many gifts from relatives and friends from New York City, Kingston, Saugerties, Albany and Schenectady. Approximately 50 guests were in attendance.

Miss Matson will become the bride of William Cullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cullen of Saugerties, in August.

Werbalowsky-Barten Wedding

Iris Hara Werbalowsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morton Werbalowsky of 72 Elizabeth Street, Kingston, became the bride of Theodore Alan Barten of Malden, Mass., June 22 at Temple Emanuel in Kingston. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore G. Barten of 60 Florence Street, Kingston.

Rabbi Jonathan Eichorn officiated at the ceremony. Jacqueline Steltz, flutist, and Mrs. Louis Werbalowsky, soloist, provided wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose an ivory gown of sate-peau in the Empire styling. The bodice and tapered sleeves were made of Chantilly lace. The scooped neckline featured scalloped lace accented with seed pearls. Her A-line skirt terminated in a chapel train.

Carol Schupp of Slightsburg was honor attendant. Other attendants were Beth Barten of Philadelphia, Pa.; Robin Kaufman of Monticello; Jeanella Werbalowsky of Dewitt, N.Y.; and Maureen Werbalowsky of Kingston.

Peter Schaefer of South Hauppauge, N.Y., was best man. Ushers were Gary Barten of Philadelphia, Pa.; Paul Barten, Kingston; Robert Schwenk, Kingston; Louis Werbalowsky, Wappingers Falls; Paul Werbalowsky, Kingston; and Allen Werbalowsky, Dewitt.

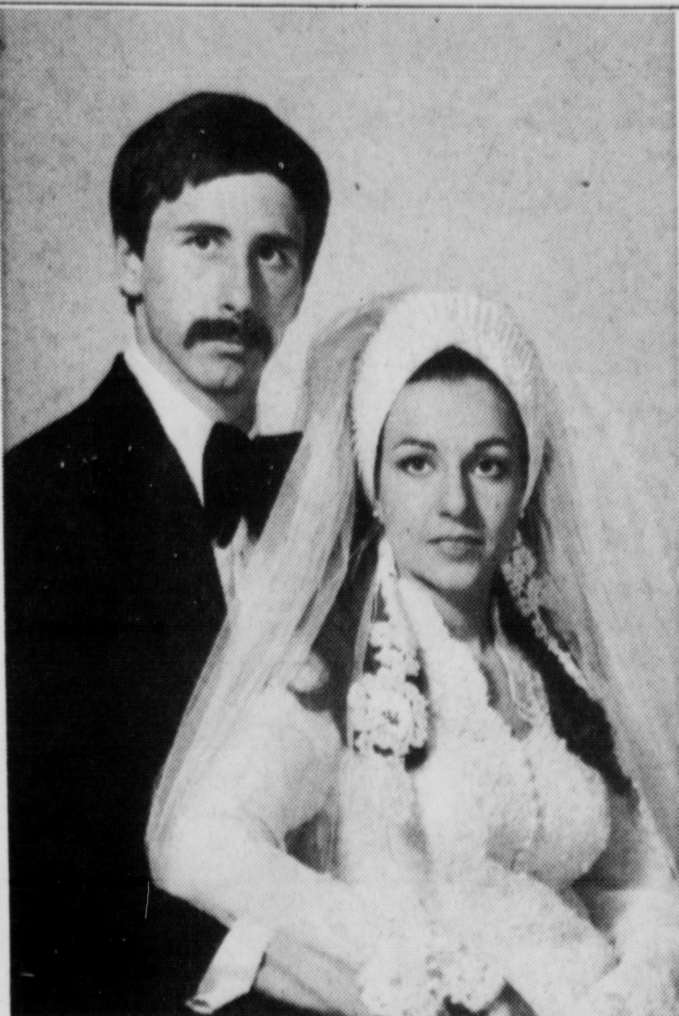

A reception was given at Holiday Inn, Kingston.

The bride, a 1971 graduate of Kingston High School, attended UCCC. In May, she graduated summa cum laude from State University College of New York at Oneonta, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Sociology. She will attend Boston University to pursue a masters degree in Rehabilitation Counseling.

The bridegroom, a 1969 alumnus of KHS, received a degree in Environmental Engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1973. He also attended RPI for graduate work. He is employed as an environmental engineer with United Engineers and Constructors, Inc. of Boston, Mass., and is pursuing a masters degree in Business Administration at Northeastern University. Mr. and Mrs. Barten will reside in Medford, Mass.

Slide Show on Life in Women's Prison

Naomi Burns and Sharon Krebs of Women in Prison, a New York-based group working with women who have just come out of prison, will show slides and lead a discussion about what it is like to be in a women's prison this Thursday, at 8:30 p.m. at the Woodstock Women's Center, 59A Tinker Street, Woodstock. Both women have had firsthand experience with prison life and both have been active for some time in trying to find work and living arrangements for women who have just left prison and in helping them to make the transition from prison life to life outside prison walls. The slide show and discussion will take the place of the initially scheduled lecture by Tri-Grace Atkinson, who is unable to appear that evening. That lecture will be rescheduled for some time later this summer or in the fall.

The next speaker in the lecture series will be artist Barbara Nessim, who will talk about "Self-Sufficiency in Art" on Thursday, July 24 at 8:30 p.m. at the Center. All women are welcome.

On Friday, July 18 at 9 p.m., author-publisher June Arnold will read from her new novel, Sister Gin, at the Woodstock Women's Center. Ms. Arnold is the founder and owner of Daughters, Inc. Press, one of the first feminist-run publishing houses set up specifically to locate and publish women authors, and is the author of The Cook and the Carpenter, a novel about a community of radical feminists and the relationships that develop between them. All women are welcome.

On Saturday, July 19 and Sunday, July 20 from 2 to 6 p.m., the Women's Center exhibit of recent drawings, prints, and collages by the Women's Studio Collective of Rosendale will again be open to the public. The four-member collective, which has formally been in operation for about a year, is one of only three groups of women artists to receive funds from the New York State Council on the Arts and the only one of the three involved in teaching classes for children and adults from the local community. All works in exhibit are for sale, and everyone is welcome.

On Saturday, July 19 at 9 p.m., the Woodstock Women's Center will sponsor an evening of poetry readings by Seven Women Poets, a New York collective of feminist poets.

Sisterhood Elects Officers

Election of officers for 1975-77 was held at a recent meeting of Sisterhood of Ahavath Israel of Kingston.

Serving as president will be Rita Smith. Vice-presidents are Judy Cassola, Helen Furman, Florence Gossett, and Mary Scher. Recording secretary is Priscilla Bernstein and corresponding secretary is Mary Herschoff. Financial secretary is Rosalie Eckdich and treasurer, Kaye Harding.

The nominating committee was chaired by Sheila Jacobs. Serving on the committee were Margo Colen, Sylvia Jacobs, Becky Kestin, and Mary Scher.

Sisterhood of Ahavath Israel is affiliated with the Women's League for Conservative Judaism which numbers more than 800 affiliated sisterhoods in United States, Canada, Puerto Rico, Mexico and other countries.

Sabina Millens, out-going president, was guest of honor at a luncheon held at Cuneo's Restaurant. Mrs. Millens was presented with her Past-President's Pin and also a gold leaf on the "Tree of Life". Rita Smith, in-coming Sisterhood president, was luncheon chairwoman and made the presentations.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I know you'll never print this because you career women have the idea that we housewives are second-class citizens, but I've kept this poem for a long time and want to share it with you. (I never did find out who wrote it.)

JUST A HOUSEWIFE

Hello, Mrs. Jones, I've just called to say I'm sorry I cried when you phoned today. No, I didn't get angry when your call came at 4:00. Just as eight cub scouts burst through the door. It's just that I had such a really full day. I'd baked eight pies for the PTA.

And washing and ironing and scrubbing the floor. Were chores I had finished not too long before. The reason I cried and gave that big yelp. Was not 'cause you phoned just to ask for my help. The comment that just about drove me berserk. Was, "I'm sure you'll have time because you don't work."

Sign me,
A HAPPY HOMEMAKER

DEAR ABBY: I think the poem is great. And for the record, before I became "Dear Abby" (at age 37) I, too, was a cub scout mother, and I also baked my share of pies for the PTA.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one who hates to have people come to my home for dinner and just sit there, picking at the food, and telling me they are on a diet and can't eat this and can't eat that!

After I have gone to the trouble of making a nice dinner, I get very annoyed when a dinner guest hardly eats enough to feed a bird.

If I were on a diet, I would tell the ogress not to count on me for dinner, but I'd come afterward.

It hardly pays to invite people over to eat anymore. Almost everybody is on a diet. Think I'll just pass out carrot and celery sticks, and let 'em chomp like horses.

ELLA

DEAR ELLA: A thoughtful hostess includes some low-cal food for the calorie counters. And the ideal hostess pretends never to notice what her guests eat—or don't eat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C.J. IN HOUSTON: The girl who steals your fiancé steals your troubles. Let her have him. He's too wishy-washy to make a good husband.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Walter
Dunham Honored

A testimonial dinner was held recently for Walter C. Dunham, who is retiring as district superintendent of the Sachem School District, Long Island, which comprises 12 School Districts.

The dinner took place in the Huntington Town House, Huntington Station, where 650 persons gathered to pay him homage. Dr. Anthony E. Terino, Director Division of School Supervision New York State Education Department, was the principal speaker. Both the guest of honor and his wife, Mary, responded.

He was graduated from New Paltz University Class of 1935 and was principal of the Lake Ronkonoma School for several years prior to becoming district superintendent.

He is the son of the late Raymond and Anna Cornelia Schoonmaker Dunham of New Paltz, and son-in-law of Mrs. Delia T. Shaw, also of New Paltz.

Faculty, Staff at UCCC Give Scholarships

Four students at Ulster County Community College have received scholarships given by groups of faculty and staff members at the Stone Ridge campus to continue their studies.

Kathy Hallion, of 2368 West Saugerties Road, Saugerties, received a scholarship awarded by the UCCC Faculty Association at the College. She plans to return to the College in the fall.

Ms. Hallion, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hallion, is a Business Administration major at UCCC.

Rose Parete, of Buck Road, Stone Ridge, received a scholarship given by the Organization of Professional Administrative Personnel at the College given in honor of Mrs. Jean Robertaccio, who retired this spring as Director of Financial Aids at UCCC.

Ms. Parete, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Parete, plans to return to UCCC in September to continue her studies as a Liberal Arts-Humanities major.

She also received a scholarship given by the Klock Foundation.

Meanwhile, two UCCC students have been awarded Unser Scholarships.

They are Janet Lynn Forsberg, of Route 28, Kingston, an Accounting major and Pearlean Waters, of 2 Farrelly Street, Kingston, a Liberal Arts-Social Science major.

Both students will be returning to UCCC in September to continue their studies.

These students were selected for the awards by a Scholarship Committee on the campus composed of administration and faculty members.

Art Exhibit Benefits Cragmoor Free Library

About 400 people attended the exhibit of paintings and sculpture by Cragmoor artists which covered a span of almost 100 years. The reaction of those who viewed the show was overwhelmingly enthusiastic. Their only regret was that the exhibit was limited to one day. Many were impressed by the quality of the art and the professional way in which it was displayed.

Close to $500 was raised for the benefit of the Cragmoor Free Library. Part of this money will go toward purchasing art books which have been published about artists who worked in this region. The remainder of the money will make it possible to complete repairs on the library building. The establishment of the library was a community project when it was originally designed and built by the early artists who lived in Cragmoor. Raising this one was an important part of a constant yearly effort to secure enough money to continue the high level of services provided to the public. It has become necessary during recent years for the library to raise as much as one half of its total annual expenses through fund-raising activities.

The success of this project makes it obvious that when members of a community work together and receive the cooperation of such organizations as the Cragmoor Volunteer Fire Company, the Ellenville Central School District, the Village of Ellenville, the Town of Wawarsing and the Ulster County Sheriff's Office, a truly worthwhile project can be accomplished.

The Cragmoor Free Library and the 500 residents of that small community are pleased they were able to present to their neighbors an exhibit of artistic and historic importance. Plans are already under way for another exhibition next year.

Winners of the 1975 titles of the national Glamour World Pageant, held before some 1,500 persons at the Grand Hotel in Accord, included Donna Sanders (L), Glamour World Model 1975; Sue Nitti, Miss Glamour World; Angel Rook, Teen Model 1975, all of New Jersey; Chrystal Key, Hyde Park, Junior Miss Glamour World and Lynann Esposito, Schenectady, Little Miss Glamour World. Seminars and lectures provided interesting hours for the contestants as they learned the latest make-up techniques by Ms. Sharon Cole, American Model 1971; models' body ovement by Joseph Towners, TV personal management data by Estelle and Alfonso; had modeling and make-up by Ms. Ruth Tolman, president of World Modeling Association; projection by Tom Golden, fashion merchandising by Dr. Freedman of Dutchess County Community College and photography by Don Lyvers.

Convicted In Giant Fraud

NEW YORK (UPI) — In what is believed the largest consumer fraud in the nation's history in terms of numbers, two businessmen have been convicted of bilking 12,000 persons of about $120,000.

Guilty verdicts were returned Tuesday by a U.S. District Court jury in Brooklyn against Dominick Seminara, 37, and Stephen Lent, 49.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Harold J. Friedman said the mail fraud was set up under a company run by the two defendants, Foto Factory Ltd.

He said that the men sent out "film mailers" — envelopes in which recipients could send back exposed film for development — and wrote out sales slips with charges of $9.95 for each mailer even when the recipients had not placed any order.

Once the mailers were sent out, the company turned over to three banks the credit card numbers of the recipients — who had previously done business with the firm — and the banks credited the firm with $120,000, Friedman said.

Only when a customer noticed a bill for a mailer he had not ordered could he get his money back from the bank, Friedman said.

Judge John R. Bartels continued Seminara and Lent free in bail pending sentencing.

They face a maximum jail term of 250 years each and $50,000 in fines.

Madlock: National League Is More Aggressive

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Bill Madlock is an otherwise pleasant young man, who goes about his business and makes friends easily, but this was one time he violated the code. Normally, whenever you beat the other guy in baseball you put on your coat, button up your lip and go on home. That's standard procedure everywhere in baseball. One thing you don't do is rub it in. But that isn't the way Bill Madlock did it at all. Naturally, they asked the Chicago Cubs' affable 24-year-old third baseman a lot of questions Tuesday night after his ninth-inning, two-run single did the American League All-Stars in again and powered the National Leaguers to a 6-3 victory, their fourth in a row and 12th in the last 13 years, and he answered as honestly as he could. He said it seems to him the National Leaguers are more aggressive than the American Leaguers and that the Americans merely sit around waiting to get beat.

What a thing to say! Especially when you've been up in the majors only two years and played in only one All-Star game.

Now you'd think the American Leaguers would ask who does Bill Madlock think he is, laugh at what he had to say and put him down, wouldn't you?

You know what they did? They agreed completely with him. None of them came right out and said in so many words they sit around waiting to get beat, but almost to a man, they admitted Bill Madlock was right—the National League is much more spirited, far more aggressive.

Actually, Bill Madlock was only saying what Mickey Mantle had said 24 hours earlier. Mantle, an honorary coach for the American Leaguers, had said the Nationals always seemed to show more enthusiasm in the All-Star contests. Now this game was over.

New York Yankees, also agreed.

"It's funny," put in Oakland's Vida Blue, who started Tuesday night's game for the American League and was roughed up for two runs and five hits in the two innings he worked, "but George Scott and I were talking about that on the bench during the game. Scotty said the guys over there reminded me of the attitude we have on our Oakland club."

Ex-Met Nolan Ryan, now with the California Angels, saw it the same way as Madlock also.

"I'd say that's true," he said upon learning what Madlock had to say. "I don't think they play hit-and-run enough over here. National League hitters are more aggressive in the sense that it's a fastball league and you see more fastballs over there. Over here, you see more breaking balls."

Mickey Mantle sat by his locker and said he did notice a little more enthusiasm generated among the American Leaguers than he had in the past. Especially when Carl Yastrzemski's three-run homer temporarily tied the score in the sixth inning.

"Otherwise, we didn't have a whole lot to yell about," said Mantle.

How true. Bill Madlock wasn't really rubbing it in. All he was doing was telling the truth.

SPORTS TODAY

The National League had put it to the Americans again, and Madlock, the NL's leading hitter who came to the Cubs a year ago after spending only a month with the Texas Rangers, was named co-MVP for the contest along with Mets' pitcher Jon Matlack, who blanked the losers in the seventh and eighth and picked running for two bases."

Hank Aaron, who put in 20 years in the National League before coming over to the Milwaukee Brewers this year, said substantially the same thing. "I'd say the National League is more aggressive," he concurred. "And Bobby Bonds, formerly with the San Francisco Giants and now with the go up swinging the bats all the time. He said the guys in our league take more pitches.

"They," Blue went on, meaning the National Leaguers, "seem to have an entirely different attitude. I saw how they were whooping it up on the bench while I was out there pitching. They were hollering and having fun. It

Kissinger Ends Guessing Game

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — With a flip of his right arm, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Tuesday night ended a guessing game he played with the press and threw out the first ball at the 1975 All-Star game.

Kissinger's two throws to Minnesota Twins second baseman Rod Carew were outside, and he quipped, "Even my own staff is watching."

Prior to the game, Kissinger refused to talk about the condition of his throwing arm or which arm he would use. "A great deal of attention has been placed recently on which arm I would use to throw out the first pitch," the secretary of state said. He said he might throw it underhand "to give the psychologists in the press something to write about."

However, his two tosses were overhand. Kissinger and his wife Nancy were cheered by a standing room only crowd at Milwaukee County Stadium when they entered their first base box.

The secretary has been described as an avid baseball fan. Although he admits he has lost touch with the game in recent years, he fondly recalls his New York childhood days when he rooted for the Yankees.

He doesn't get much of a chance to see any games lately, since Washington does not have a major league team, but he says he still looks at the box scores and checks the Yankees' place in the standings.

Kissinger's invitation to the All-Star game was part of a three-day visit to Milwaukee and Minneapolis.

His Tuesday swing to Minneapolis was noted with some feigned apprehension by Wisconsin Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, who told Kissinger that Minnesota and Wisconsin "are perfectly happy with the boundaries between our states."

Kissinger replied:

"I was unable to change a boundary in the Middle East not long ago. If I can't change a boundary in the Middle West, I may be out of a job."

Losers Didn't Display Enthusiasm

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)

George Scott pulled no punches.

"The only team we got in the American League that plays like they do is the Oakland A's," Scott said after the American League had lost for the 12th time in 13 games to the National League in the All-Star game by a 6-3 score.

Vida Blue, who started for the American League and gave up three runs, agreed.

"In our league we run and take the extra base," he said. "All the other teams play conservative baseball and try to play catch up with us."

Bill Madlock, who was a co-winner of the game's Most Valuable Player award, put his finger on the difference between the two teams.

"Our guys were on the bench cheering all the time," he said. "It was unbelievable. Over on the other bench they were sitting there waiting to get beat."

The question of enthusiasm was raised Monday when former American League great Mickey Mantle brought up the subject.

Mantle said that even when he was playing it appeared the National League had more desire and more spirit than the American League.

Pete Rose said the American League "had a lot of young guys on the bench and they seemed kind of awed by the whole thing while our guys were loose as a goose."

Bobby Murcer, who came to the National League after four All-Star years in the American League, noticed a difference, too.

"From what I saw there is a different atmosphere of some kind," he said. "On our bench everybody had the winning spirit and it poured out. Over there it didn't seem like they had much."

Scott and Blue were the two most eloquent spokesmen in the losers' locker room on the subject.

"Those guys in the other league play a lot more aggressive," Scott said. "Our teams play conservative baseball."

"In the National a guy's on first and someone gets a hit and there are runners on first and third. Over here that happens and we got runners on first and second. Their guys aren't afraid and everything they do is geared to force mistakes on us. There are more mental mistakes made in the American League than in the National League."

Blue said the National League hitters were "much more aggressive."

"And those guys really tear up the bases and always play hard—to win," he said. "Our guys just aren't used to that approach."

Stan Musial, who with

Mantle was one of the honorary captains in the game, said he remembered when the situations were reversed.

"Back when I was playing (former National League president) Warren Giles used to come into the locker room and give us a pep talk," he said.

"I don't think we took the game seriously," he said. "Now I don't think the American League takes it seriously enough. Maybe they need some pep talks."

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — A two-minute standing ovation at the pre-game introduction made home run king Henry Aaron "tingle all over."

The Milwaukee Brewers outfielder jogged onto the field as the introductions of the American League stars were being announced and the applause was deafening.

"It was great," said Aaron, who began his career with the old Milwaukee Braves.

Aaron got into his 24th All-Star game as a pinch-hitter in the second inning with two runners on, but hit a broken bat liner to short.

"I was using a different bat, but I thought I had hit the ball at the meat end," he said.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Second baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, quoted a few weeks ago that he might boycott the All-Star game because he played only three innings a year ago, went the full nine innings Tuesday night.

He said afterward he felt his earlier statement had been "blown out of proportion."

"I was upset at the way things were handled then

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — It's four in a row for the National League All-Stars and 12 of the last 13, but Reggie Jackson and Henry Kissinger still are not convinced the American League is inferior.

"What about the World Series?" Jackson asked after the National League had continued its long domination by beating the American League, 6-3, in the 46th Annual Major League All-Star Game Tuesday night. A record crowd of 51,480, including the Secretary of State, jammed the newly-enlarged Milwaukee County Stadium.

"I was rooting for the American League," Kissinger admitted just before joining the winners in their clubhouse on the other side of the field.

Kissinger sat in a special box alongside the American League dugout and, diplomat that he is, cheered loudly for the home team. He rose to his feet in the sixth inning when Carl Yastrzemski's home run tied the score at 3-3 and joined Milwaukeeans in standing ovations for Brewers George Scott and Hank Aaron.

Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs and Jon Matlack of the New York Mets shared the spotlight in the winners' clubhouse. Madlock, the National League's top hitter with a .353 average, drove a bases-loaded single down the leftfield line in the ninth inning to send home the winning runs.

Matlack, the winning pitcher, hurled two scoreless innings, striking out four and walking none.

They were named co-recipients of the Most Valuable Player award, though only one trophy was immediately available. "Let him take it," Matlack said pointing to Madlock. "We wouldn't have won it without him."

Madlock's game-winner went just under the fingers of third baseman Graig Nettles. "It took two hops and the last one hit the edge of the grass and scooted," Nettles said.

"I don't usually hit the line," Madlock said. "I'm a spray hitter, so I can see why he wasn't guarding it."

Steve Garvey and Jimmy Wynn had staked the Nationals to a 2-0 lead in the second inning on back-to-back home runs, the first such accomplishment in All-Star history since 1956 when Mickey Mantle and Ted Williams did it off Warren Spahn. Johnny Bench drove home another run with a single in the third and the Nationals seemed to have things under control until the sixth.

Jerry Reuss and Don Sutton had held the Americans scoreless to that point. Then Tom Seaver came in and immediately got into trouble.

Joe Rudi singled and Claudell Washington, running for him, stole second. Gene Tenace walked and Yastrzemski, batting for Jim Kaat, drove the first pitch from Seaver into the right centerfield bullpen. The runs were the first off any Mets pitcher in 12 innings of All-Star play.

Reggie Smith led off the NL ninth with a single. Al Oliver, batting for Matlack, doubled to left and Rich Gossage then came in to replace Catfish Hunter. Gossage hit Larry Bowa and Madlock's single drove home Smith and Oliver.

"The guys out there in the American League just seemed to be waiting to get beat, and that's what happened," Matlack said.

"We thought we could get him (Madlock) on inside stuff," said AL manager Alvin Dark, "but it was a good hit he made. Like the Dodgers used to say, 'we'll see you next year'."

Jackson and some of his teammates didn't think the wait would be that long.

"The only time I play them (National Leaguers) is in the World Series," Jackson said. "You know what happens then."

"The National League crosses after the All-Star Game, but after the World Series you know who's crowing," said Thurman Munson, starting catcher for the American League.

Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds thought he had an answer why the NL was superior in the All-Star Game — depth.

"We have a bench so much superior to theirs," he said. "For instance, two years ago, me, Jimmy Wynn and Hank Aaron were the starters in the outfield. We started in front of Willie Stargell, Bobby Bonds and Willie Davis. That's a pretty good second team."

A Top Contender

Tom Turner of Kingston will be one of the top contenders in the High Performance Outboard Races to be held at Hidden Harbor, Port Ewen, Saturday and Sunday, starting at 1 p.m. Turner's boat is a Sidewinder Tunnel powered by a 150 horsepower Mercury motor running the J.S. Class.

International Field For Outboard Racing

PORT EWEN Area boating stars will compete against international aces Saturday and Sunday, July 19-20, in the American Power Boat Association-sanctioned Outboard Performance Craft boat race sponsored by the Hidden Harbor Yacht Club. The races will be run in the Hudson River off the Yacht Club front.

Heading the list of local entries is John Sherlock, 1974 National Champion in the J.S. Class and winner of his class in the recent Festival Canada regatta. Gary Reynolds, Butch Cooper and Tom Turner are other local entries.

Joe Augustine: 17Ks in BRL

KINGSTON Joe Augustine pitched a 3-hitter and struck out 17 to pace the Volunteer Firemen to a 3-1 victory over the Elks Club in the Junior Babe Ruth League.

In another game, the Veterans of Foreign Wars scored a run in the bottom of the seventh to edge Turk Construction 3-2.

Jim Brown, who allowed eight hits, pitched shutout ball after yielding three runs in the first two innings. The Elks scored their lone run in the second inning off Augustine on a double by Dan Curlin and Stan Tentnowski's single.

Greg Berardi collected two singles for the Vols.

VFW jumped to a 2-1 first inning lead against Turk's. The losers made it 2-1 in the fifth and tied it 2-2 in the top of the seventh, before VFW rallied for the clincher.

Ed Vertetis knocked in the winning run with one out in the bottom of the seventh. Bob Schlanger, the winning pitcher, struck out 10 and led the Vets with two singles and a double. Jim Merritt had two singles for Turk's.

Moose Rally Nips J & G

KINGSTON Earl Mitchell singled Guy Turk home in the bottom of the seventh to give Moose Lodge a 2-1 victory over J&G Drywall in a Senior Babe Ruth League pitching duel between the winner Al Johnson and Tom Slattery and John Acker of J&G.

Johnson pitched a solid game for the Moose, yielding only three hits, striking out 10 and losing his shutout when two errors permitted J&G to score.

Guy Turk, who launched the winning rally, led the Moose with a single and double. After singling in the seventh, he moved to second on Anthony Turk's infield hit and scored on Mitchell's single.

Braves Lead

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Atlanta Braves have been complaining about "negative" reporting, so here's a positive report on the Braves.

The Braves lead the major leagues in the number of lost fans compared with a year ago.

Going into the All-Star break, after 41 home playing dates, the Braves had drawn 347,837 paid, an average of just under 8,500 per game. Through the same number of games last year, the Braves drew 585,183.

That's a drop of 238,346 — and no other major league club can make that claim.

Mohawks Girls Champs

ROSENDALE Mohawks trounced Apaches 14-6 to win the girls softball championship in the Rondout Valley Little League.

Janice Slater limited the Apaches to three hits and hit a double and single. Barb Coddington had two singles, Lulu Blum had a triple.

Maryanne Sperryak had a double for the Apaches.

HURLEY Hurley Rec swimmers routed Rondout 282-85 in a dual meet at Hurley Rec Park.

Becky Warren of Hurley was the meet's only triple winner, placing first in the 17-under 50 freestyle, 50 breaststroke and 100 yard individual medley.

Hurley's double winners included Kathy Wildblood, 8-under 25 free and 25 breast; Lisa Warren, 10-under, 50 free and 25 butterfly; and Steven Wildblood, 17-under, 50 free and 50 breaststroke.

43 Eligible For County Women's Golf

KINGSTON Forty-three players, including defending champion Nancy Kolln, are eligible for the 1975 Ulster County Women's Golf Association Tournament, Betty Davenport, tournament director, has announced. The tournament will be played on July 29-30 at Sawyerkill Country Club and Stone Dock.

"We still have two openings," said Mrs. Davenport, "and they very likely will be filled before the tournament is under way."

There is something old and something new in this year's renewal of the women's classic. Nancy Kolln, the youngest player ever to win the county title, will be seeking her third title. She captured the 1972 event with a 36-hole total of 156 and last year with 168.

The something new is Pat McLean, who served as men's varsity golf coach for the 1974 and 1975 seasons at Ulster County Community College, will be making her debut in the county championship. Miss McLean played golf in college and the Adirondack area for the past several years.

"I'm really looking forward to competing," said the UCCC coach. "I understand it's a very fine tournament."

Other top names in the 36-hole event include such Wiltwyck stalwarts as Marilyn Motzkin, the 1973 champion, Charlotte Kolln, Arlene Speisman, Shorty Chase, Pappy Bostic and the tournament chairman, Mrs. Davenport.

The tournament will be played under a new format, with net prizes eliminated for the first time since the tournament started.

Maneen Opens With 80 in State Golf

SYRACUSE Alex (A.J.) Maneen, the Colman High golf ace, faced an uphill battle today to survive the 36-hole cut in the 53rd annual New York State Amateur Golf Championship. Maneen's first round 40-40 the task of shooting between 70 and 75.

Rad Yaun of Liberty, a former UCAL ace and No. 4 player on the University of Jacksonville roster this spring, was in a four-way tie for 10th place with a 36-38-74. A doublbogey six on the 18th hole kept him from getting closer to the leader.

Foster, the tournament leader, is the club champion at Bellevue Country Club.

Jack McCabe, also of Syracuse, was second with a 69.

The only other player to break par was Frank Plata of Oswego with a 70.

Six-time winner Don Allen of Rochester was five strokes back at 73. Allen finished second last year in George Burns of Port Washington. Burns turned professional recently and performed well in the British Open at Carnoustie.

80 here Tuesday left him near the middle of the 135-player field and 12 shots behind the leader, Alan Foster, who shot a three-under-par 68 to lead the field going into the second round.

Maneen opened well enough with pars on the first three holes over the 6,662-yard, par 35-36-71, hilly and tree-lined Bellevue Country Club under perfect weather conditions.

After the three opening pars, Maneen ran into trouble, picking up three straight bogies. He parred the par-three seventh hole and added single bogeys on the eighth and ninth holes to make the turn in 40.

The races will offer more than $1500 in prize money and trophies for the "Schaefer Regatta Races" provided by the F&M Schaefer Brewing Company.

Spectators may view the races from the grounds of the Hidden Harbor Yacht Club. Signs are posted on all main roads to guide spectators to the race site.

Crucial Day In Jets-Namath Talks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, secure in the knowledge that a $5 million agreement with a cosmetics firm will keep him in steak and potatoes after his pro football days are over, said Tuesday the next 24 hours could prove critical in his contract negotiations with the New York Jets.

"Even an oral arrangement will be satisfactory and put me in the training camp setup," said the Jets' quarterback, who turned down a $4 million World Football League offer because he doesn't want to leave the New York area. "I want to play and if I get the right signals Wednesday, my lawyer can take it from there."

Namath said he's "hungry" to get started and even requested, if a contract can be worked out, that Head Coach Charlie Winner permit him to play in at least half the team's exhibition games.

"I've always had three goals in life: to make the Jets, to be worthy of my contract and to be secure financially after my pro football days are over," Namath said.

Jim Walsh, Namath's attorney, said that by 4 p.m. EDT Wednesday, Joe might have a more definitive idea of where he stands with the National Football League club. Namath is reported to be asking for a $1 million, multi-year contract with the Jets.

Namath will ultimately receive five times that amount with the cosmetics company, Faberge Inc., as the firm's consultant in national and international sports programs and promotions. His contract calls for a minimum of $250,000 a year for the first eight years and a pair of six-year options for the same figure that would carry the terms of complete duration to 20 years.

"This is the first time in my life that I have something substantial to grow with outside of football," said Namath as he sipped a glass of white wine. "I thank the good Lord for keeping me healthy so I could land a job like this."

Is money the main factor in your life, he was asked.

"Let's say it's certainly a big factor. Security has a good deal to do with anyone's life style. I like to sleep nights and not having to worry about finances definitely helps my peace of mind."

Namath said he'd like to play football for at least two more years and is excited about the Jets' chances this season.

"We're coming off six straight wins and that does a lot for your confidence. There were uncertainties last year, but now we know we can beat everyone," he said.

Did that "we" mean Namath and the Jets were just a few dollars apart in their thinking?

"I want to play, the more work I get, the better quarterback I'll be. But I won't play without a contract."

Namath hasn't had two healthy seasons, back-to-back, since 1969. He feels the injury jinx is about to desert him. And now with his new toiletry contract he can smell the sweet fragrance of success.

The New York Jets opened training camp at Hofstra University without Joe Namath Tuesday but with 74 of 81 invited players reporting.

Namath, who earlier in the day announced he was still negotiating with the Jets, is among 32 veteran players expected to report on Saturday.

Of the players reporting, 23 were returning veterans. Two veterans were excused from practice—offensive tackle Gordie Browne and kick return specialist Lou Piccone. The other five absentees were all first year rookies.

James Scott, a wide receiver with the Chicago Fire of the WFL last season, has agreed to contractual terms but has not signed a contract and did not report.

Physicals and photographs were scheduled for Wednesday.

Maddox On Probation

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Defensive end Bob Maddox has been placed on probation by both the National Football League and a judge following a guilty plea to a drug charge, clearing the way for Maddox to report to the Cincinnati Bengals training camp at Wilmington, Ohio.

Maddox, 26, Tuesday was given a suspended sentence of 10- to 20 years and five years on probation by Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge Robert L. Black.

Maddox had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of hashish for sale. He had been arrested last March 12 after police raided his apartment and said they found 24 ounces of hashish.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said he had notified both the Bengals and Maddox that "no impediment will be placed in the way of Maddox reporting to training in as much as the court has seen fit to place him on probation."

However, Rozelle added that Maddox was told that "any further difficulties with the law will result in severe disciplinary action by this office," presumably meaning suspension.

Judge Black told Maddox he will have to live up to the court's probation requirements "more stringently than other people."

"As a professional athlete, especially a football player, you're an example to others. You're in the limelight."

'Rule Isn't Needed'

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — An expert on economics said Tuesday he doesn't think the Rozelle rule is needed to maintain balance in the National Football League.

The NFL could function in a free market situation modified by provisions such as revenue sharing between teams or payroll budget limits, according to Dr. Roger Noll, professor of economics at the California Institute of Technology.

Noll was a rebuttal witness in U.S. District Court here for 15 current and former NFL players who brought suit asking that the "Rozelle rule" be eliminated on the grounds that it holds players' salaries down and keeps them from moving to other teams.

The NFL contends the rule maintains balance in the league by preventing players from jumping to wealthy or otherwise attractive teams when their option with a weaker team runs out.

The rule enables the NFL commissioner to set compensation that must be paid to a team losing a player to another team.

Noll said the NFL is one of the most competitively well-balanced organizations in professional sports.

Noll also told NFL attorney John French that he believes the American Football League would never have been on a par with the NFL if it had not merged with the NFL in 1966.

But he said this was not because of a difference in player quality, but because of the size of cities where AFL teams were located.

"AFL teams were located on the average in smaller cities — and the smaller the city, the lower quality the team," he said.

Forbes Expected to Testify In Own Defense

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Dave Forbes of the Boston Bruins was expected to testify in his own defense today in a trial which has brought to the fore the not so palatable features of major league sports — the pressures, violence and pent-up emotions which sometimes are unleashed.

For the first time in the United States, a player has been charged for his behavior during a game. Forbes is charged with aggravated assault. He allegedly attacked Henry Boucha of the Minnesota North Stars with a deadly weapon, his hockey stick, during a National Hockey League game between the two teams on Jan. 4.

Tuesday Bruins Coach Donald Cherry, testified that Forbes was in tears after the fight in which Boucha received a serious head injury.

"There were tears in his eyes and he was saying, 'What have I done? What have I done?'" Cherry testified.

"He was very distraught and I was trying to console him," Cherry said. "There was nothing we could say to console him. All he wanted to do was go see Henry."

Cherry said the Bruins were under tremendous emotional pressure that night. "They were on the worst road trip in five years," he said. "We'd been losing games, we just had to win this game."

He said even very young hockey players are taught to play rough, using physical contact and body checking.

"If you don't do it, you don't win," Cherry said.

Cherry said professional players are told, "If they don't get going they'll be sitting on the bench or in the minors."

Earlier Tuesday, NHL President Clarence Campbell testified for the prosecution that Forbes admitted at a hearing that he threatened Boucha while the two were in the penalty box after a fight earlier in the game.

Boucha had 24 stitches taken for a gash he suffered in the fight and underwent surgery for double vision.

Orr to Meet With Bruins

BOSTON (UPI) — Superstar defenseman Bobby Orr says he has received a "very generous" offer from the World Hockey Association, but plans to talk with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League before making any moves.

"I don't want to leave Boston," Orr said in an interview on a radio show Tuesday night, "but you really have to sit down and think. It's a darn big business now."

It has been reported that Orr was offered a $1 million bonus for signing and a multi-million dollar, five-year contract with the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA. Orr did not disclose the amount of the Minnesota offer.

The interview was on WBZ's "Calling All Sports."

"We have a lot more talking to do with Boston than anyone really, because we haven't given them a chance or sat down with them for long periods," Orr said. "We definitely are going to do that."

Orr said he didn't want to discuss contract terms with the Bruins during the season. His current contract, believed to be for $250,000 a year, expires next summer.

"If we have to wait until the end of next season, fine," Orr said. "If we get it over real quick before the season, fine."

Orr said, "I don't want to be playing and worrying about contracts here, there, or anywhere else. I want to have a good year and get the Stanley Cup back to Boston."

Orr is the only defenseman ever to win the NHL scoring title, a feat he has accomplished twice. He won last season with 136 points.

Milone Captures Yachting Title

HENDERSON HARBOR Guiseppe Milone, even though he brought his yacht in fourth in the final race Tuesday, easily captured the World Yachting Championship's Tempest Class.

Milone had led by a substantial margin since the beginning of the six-day championship on Lake Ontario. The yachtsmen faced a steady 12 to 15-knot breeze from the southwest in the finals at the U.S. Sailing Center at nearby Association Island.

In the 470 Class, Marc Laurent of France moved up from third Monday to capture the championship.

Jon Albrechtson of Sweden captured the final Tempest race Tuesday to finish second in the standings. He was followed by Glen Foster of the United States, defending champion Uwe Mares of Germany, Milone, and Italy's Gianpeiro Dotti.

Milone finished with 11 points, while Albrechtson had 16.7 points. Mares finished third with 47.1 points and his countryman, Horst Nebel, finished 11th Tuesday to rank fourth with 52 points. Dotti was fifth with 55.7 points.

German Heiko Krick finished seventh Tuesday to rank 19th with 119 points.

Joern Hellner topped the Australians, ranking 28th with 146 points after finishing 33rd Tuesday. Ian Spies finished 28th to rank 29th with 153 points, Gordon Ingate failed to finish but ranked 36th with 177 points and J.P. MacGregor finished 38th to wind up 42nd with 220 points.

France's Marc Bougt finished first in Tuesday's 470 Class race, followed by J.F. Fountaine of France, Italy's Roberto Vencato, Mark Ploch of the United States and Sweden's Loffstedt was fifth.

The Weirdest Ending

Mexican referee Ernesto Magana asks World junior welterweight champ Pedro Fernandez of Spain if he wishes to continue bout following injuries sustained in earlier round of title bout in Bangkok. Challenger Saensak Muangsurin of Thai looks on. The bout had a sensational ending when Fernandez pushed aside his handlers, crossed the ring and raised the hand of the challenger as victor, conceding the bout at start of the 8th round. (UPI)

New Zealand Leaders

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (UPI) — Marilyn Smith of Petone, New Zealand, shot a four-over-par 76 Tuesday to lead the first-ever qualifying for the U.S. Women's Open golf championship.

Forty-six players shooting as high as 89 made it into the tournament, which begins on Thursday, from among 62 entrants. The qualifying round was made necessary because, for the first time, entries exceeded the starting field of 150.

Miss Smith, 23, is no relation to Marilyn Smith of Dallas, a veteran pro who has won 22 times on the LPGA tour and is exempt from qualifying.

The New Zealand Miss Smith had nines of 39 and 37 on the 6,165-yard Atlantic City Country Club course, which was waterlogged from three straight days of rain. The third day of rain, on Monday, postponed the qualifying for 24 hours.

Debbie Meisterlin of La Habra, Calif., and Silvia Betolaccini of Buenos Aires, Argentina, who now lives in Houston, shot 77s to share second place in the qualifying.

The exempt players include tournament favorite Jo Anne Carner, the champion in 1971 and last year's top moneywinner on the LPGA tour, defending champion Sandra Haynie and LPGA champion Kathy Whitworth, still shooting for the one major title which has eluded her throughout her career.

New Twist In LPGA: Women Caddies

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (UPI)

Equality has come to women's golf this week, at least in one area.

But the players in the U.S. Women's Open, which begins Thursday, won't see it in their pay checks or their television coverage. That's still only a fraction of what the men get.

Where it is evident, however, is at the caddy shack. For the first time ever, there are some women caddies to go with the women golfers in their national championship.

"I can't ever remember even having any girls available to caddy at the Women's Open," says Margaret Lovell, the chairman of the USGA Women's Committee.

Their number is small, only four in a starting field that will total 150, but no one can say the female caddies have been overlooked.

"I've gotten a lot of comments," said Carol Merkh, a 22-year-old who's carrying for veteran Ruth Jessen. "Some of the guys were really impressed when they saw me carrying this bag."

"It's kind of unusual, but I can't see anything different, as long as she can handle the golf bag," says Miss Jessen, a winner of 11 tour events, whose tournament schedule has been light in recent years because of injuries and surgery.

Miss Jessen, whose activity these days generally is limited to giving lessons at the Pine Top Country Club in the mountains of northeastern Arizona, says she couldn't remember a women's tournament anywhere in the United States where female caddies were used.

They are common in some other countries, notably Australia and Japan, but there the girls are allowed to use pull carts. The four women caddying in the Women's Open must pack the bags just as the men do and Miss Jessen hopes they'll be able to hold up.

"Carol's good and she knows the yardages, but I know how heavy that golf bag can get in a tournament," she said. "It has to get heavy for her — it gets heavy even for the guys with all that paraphernalia in there, especially if it should rain and things get wet."

The other players assigned female caddies — the USGA makes the caddy assignments by blind draw — are Cynthia Hill, the individual medalist in last year's Women's World Amateur team championship, and professionals Louise Bruce and Donna Adwell.

Miss Merkh began caddying a year ago when she worked at a public course pro shop and she would accompany the professional, Lew Scicchitano, to various courses "and sometimes I couldn't play."

What she meant to say is women were not allowed to play on certain courses.

"So I'd carry his clubs, instead," Carol said.

When Carol learned that a girl friend would act as a scorer in the Women's Open, she decided to apply for a caddy's spot, and she got it.

The sun finally broke through to allow a qualifying round Tuesday after three successive days of rain at Atlantic City Country Club. Good weather is expected the rest of the week.

Johnson Ties Weber

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Don Johnson equalled Dick Weber's record of 24 career Professional Bowlers Association titles Tuesday night by winning the $50,000 Tucson Open Bowling tournament.

The 34-year-old Johnson, who has won at least one championship in each of the last 10 years, defeated rookie Guy Rowbury, Roman, Mont., 234-226, to capture the $5,000 first prize. Rowbury, competing in only his fourth PBA tournament, gained the finals by beating the tour's leading money winner, Earl Anthony, Tacoma, 258-206.

In the championship match, Johnson broke a tie with a one-pin lead in the third and increased it to 31 pins in the seventh as he strung together four strikes. Rowbury closed out with five strikes, forcing Johnson to mark in the tenth in order to win.

Rowbury won $3,000 for his biggest check on the tour, while Anthony's earnings of $2,500 raised his season's total to more than $73,000.

Teresa Goes Home To Die

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nineteen-year-old Teresa Sadauskas realized her last wish today. She returned home to Chicago to die.

Doctors at Baltimore City Hospital in Baltimore, Md., told the young leukemia patient Tuesday she had only a day or two to live and consented to her wish to travel home to Chicago.

But commercial airlines refused her passage, explaining that they were not equipped to accommodate passengers in her condition.

The prospects for returning home seemed bleak until Tuesday evening, when a friend told Lewis Emery of Rockford, Ill., of a television report on Miss Sadauskas' problem.

Emery, 65, who operates Emery Air Charter, a firm which specializes in transportation of seriously ill persons, donated the services of a crew and an airborne intensive care unit — a Lear jet equipped with hospital equipment and staffed by a nurse. Special equipment allowed Miss Sadauskas' doctor in Baltimore to monitor her condition throughout the flight.

Miss Sadauskas' mother, Janina, was aboard the plane when it left Chicago and accompanied her daughter on the flight home.

The plane arrived at O'Hare International Airport early today and Miss Sadauskas managed to sit up for the reunion with her father, brother and four sisters who had gathered at the airport to welcome her.

"Somebody had to bring her home and we were the only ones who could do it," Emery said. "There was nothing cold-hearted about the airlines refusing to take her. They're simply not equipped to do it. They can't keep oxygen going on one of those wide-bodied jets with people smoking and all ... there could be a big explosion."

"So I just said 'We'll go get her.'"

Harriet Almanza, one of Miss Sadauskas' sisters, said she doubted her sister could have come home without Emery's help.

"We were trying all day to get somebody to do it. We're very grateful to him. We didn't expect it," she said. Miss Sadauskas learned of her illness a year ago and had been confined to a Chicago hospital until about three months ago, when she was taken to Baltimore City Hospital, an affiliate of Johns Hopkins Medical Center, for a bone marrow transplant.

Heads Dems Slate

SAUGERTIES

The Saugerties Democratic Committee met Monday night and endorsed a full slate of candidates for town elections this fall, led by Paul Miller, making his second run for supervisor. Miller is joined by John Smith, an incumbent councilman; Frank Sinnott, also a candidate for councilman and Town Chairperson Jane Chodaba, a candidate for town clerk.

Village Justice David Gobel was endorsed to run for town justice while Al Ferrara got the nod for reelection as road superintendent.

Town Democrats will caucus at St. Mary's Parish Hall on July 24 at 7:30 p.m.

Miller, a relative unknown in 1973, finished second in a three-way race that saw A. Michael Schovel, a Democrat, run on the independent line and defeat both major party candidates. Charles Gertz, the Republican, finished third in that race.

Schovel has not announced his plans for this year. The Republicans are expected to run Frank Greco for supervisor. Miller, who has been critical of the work done by the town's zoning commission—in terms of its failure to allow for public input—continued on the same theme in a press release today.

Disco Fire Sentencing

WHITE PLAINS (UPI) — Peter Leonard, 22, of Greenwich, Conn., was sentenced to 15 years to life in prison today for the deaths of 24 people in a Port Chester discotheque fire last year.

Leonard was charged with 24 counts of murder and pleaded guilty more than a month ago. He was sentenced on each count, although the sentences will run concurrently.

He was also sentenced to lesser terms on charges of arson, burglary and petty larceny.

Leonard was accused of setting a fire in a bowling alley next to the crowded Gulliver's Discotheque last July in order to cover up a burglary.

Second Sentencing In Trooper Death

WAMPSVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Robert L. Donovan, 49, of Brooklyn, one of two men convicted July 4 of murder in the death of State Trooper Emerson J. Dillon, has been sentenced to a minimum of 30 years in Attica prison.

Madison County Court Judge Ross Patane Tuesday sentenced Donovan to 20 years to life for one count of second degree felony murder. He also gave him indeterminate terms of not less than 10 nor more than 20 years for first degree robbery and not less than 5 nor more than 10 years for second degree criminal possession of a weapon.

Court officials said the minimum 30-year term was because the lowest amount set for murder, 20 years, and for robbery, 10 years, would be served consecutively.

The sentencing came as a surprise because reporters had been told the final court appearances of Donovan and John E. Ruzas, 32, of Queens, also convicted in the Dillon slaying, would be separated, possibly by as much as a week for security reasons. Courthouse officials gave no reason for why Donovan came up as soon as he did.

Only Monday, Patane gave Ruzas the maximum sentence of 25 years to life for second degree murder and added a consecutive term of 12½ to 25 years for first degree robbery. Ruzas also was sentenced to 7½ to 15 years each on two counts of criminal possession of a weapon, second degree, but those terms were made concurrent with the murder and robbery sentences.

Dillon, 38, of Phoenix, was shot fatally last Oct. 24 on the Thruway near Canastota after he stopped a car to question two men matching the description of suspects in a jewelry store robbery in the Syracuse suburb of DeWitt.

Ruzas and Donovan were arrested at a roadblock on Route 5 near Canastota after stealing several cars and crashing through a barrier at a Thruway exit ramp.

At their trial, Ruzas admitted firing the shot that killed Dillon. He also said Donovan "had nothing to do with the shooting."

Had the trial jury found them guilty of first degree murder, which covers the slaying of on-duty policemen and correction officers, the two would have faced a mandatory death sentence.

Neither will be eligible for parole until their minimum sentences are served, authorities said.

PAST: (Q.) Alan and I promised to tell each other everything, and no lies. I told him all about myself and then he told me he got his former girl friend pregnant and she had a baby and he didn't marry her.

He asked me to decide whether I wanted to go with him knowing all that. I do, but I have doubts about whether I should. Should I still talk to him?—Desperate in Texas

(A.) Yes, and give him credit for honesty. In your talks, let him know clearly but without preaching that you do not plan to be the same kind of girl friend his ex was.

Also do not commit yourself to "steady" status until you are sure you can respect him and he can respect you.

PHONE PHOBIA: (Q.) When I get on the phone with a boy I have nothing to say. I get nervous. I have gone out with a lot of boys and I can talk to them when I'm around them. But not on the phone.

Here is all I can think to say: "Hi... How are you... I love you... Are you busy?" After that, what do I say?—Few Words in Florida

(A.) Talk about anything on the phone that you would talk about in ordinary conversation. But do not spend a lot of time at the phone just filling time. After you have said what you have to say and the boy has said what he has to say, you can ask, "Was there anything else on your mind?" or something similar. This should remind the boy that the conversation has gone on long enough.

Do not say to a boy, on the phone or anywhere, "I love you," unless you really mean it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unusual departure from your normal routine makes a more pleasant day for you and those around you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be excellent in the role of social director for the group or family today. Organize a picnic or a trip to the ball park.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to keep yourself clear for last-minute opportunities. If you don't, you'll be sorry when you hear how much fun everybody had.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spend too much time away from home today. A visitor may ring your doorbell and you'd miss him.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Toward evening you'll be restless and want to get out among friends. Make plans early in the day to avoid disappointment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A person you'll be exchanging pleasantries with at a gathering will turn the discussion to a topic of mutual material benefit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a bit slow getting started today, but by the time others run out of steam you'll still be rarin' to go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a short interest span today. Have a tactful exit line ready if an acquaintance tries to bend your ear with a long tale.

East's Double Brings Trouble

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

West thought a long time about his opening lead. He finally came to the conclusion that some one could ruff a heart lead, but that East's double had to be based on one of the black aces. If he held the club ace it would keep; if he held the ace of spades, it might be important to lead to it right away.

Therefore, West opened the spade. East did hold the ace, but unfortunately it turned out that dummy was void of spades. South fanned his hand for the grand slam.

North's bidding has been both brilliant and successful. He could have jumped right to six diamonds, but he wanted to buy the hand there so he bid just five. Then when West went to six hearts North felt he had to save at seven diamonds.

East had no idea that there was any danger of South making seven diamonds and he was not interested in seven hearts. Hence he doubled seven diamonds.

East really should not have doubled. If he had passed the chances are that West would have bid seven hearts on the theory that it just might make. North might well have opened a club and the heart grand slam would have come in.

Rejoicing In Russia... Without TV

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts cut short their sleep today to work on a balky television camera that has prevented coverage of their preparations for a space rendezvous with three American astronauts.

Officials at Kaliningrad mission control center said Col. Alexei Leonov and engineer Valeri Kubasov were doing their job "excellently." Viktor Blagov, who headed the overnight team at the center said, "They are carrying out some procedures from memory without referring to their log books."

The cosmonauts woke up 1 1/2 hours early to try to repair a black and white television camera that went dead during liftoff Tuesday.

By midday, nearly 24 hours after the launch, the Soviet public still had not seen any film of the two men inside Soyuz 19.

Blagov said the fault "will not affect the flight. The only sufferers are the viewers."

Asked about the atmosphere at mission control, Blagov said, "Excitement is great on both sides."

As the cosmonauts hurtled through space, the Soviet union celebrated the historic joint mission with a song, an original perfume and a new brand of cigarettes.

Leonov and Kubasov, both space veterans, have been eulogized in a new Soviet song, "Rendezvous of the Cosmonauts."

A new perfume honoring the flight went on sale in Moscow department stores Tuesday and a new brand of cigarettes, called Soyuz-Apollo, also made their Russian debut.

The cigarettes and perfume will also be sold in the United States.

Millions of Soviets watched their first live televised blastoff Tuesday.

Hundreds of Muscovites squeezed into the television section of the GUM department store on Red Square and watched with clenched fists as the sleek white rocket lifted off in a burst of searing yellow flame.

There was a scatter of applause and shouts of "good lads" and "excellent."

In the past, Soviet viewers had only seen videotaped recordings of space launchings after the success of the missions had been assured.

Television officials estimated 100 million Soviet citizens watched the Soyuz launch. They included Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist party.

Once in orbit, Leonov and Kubasov had a chicken dinner before settling down for the night.

Minutes before Apollo took off, Leonov radioed good wishes to the American astronauts.

"We will be with you shortly," the American commander, Brig. Gen. Thomas P. Stafford replied.

Man-In-The-Street Reaction

By UPI
"Detente schmetente," said crusty Howie Nushbaum stacking newspapers at his Manhattan magazine stand. The headlines blared the news of the Apollo-Soyuz flight, but Howie was not impressed.

"We spend I-don't-know how many billions dollars to put some schlemiel on the moon, now we got to play ball with the Russians," he said. "Oy vay."

Other Americans were not as vocal. Dullied by a decade of space spectaculars, they seemed to take Tuesday's effort in stride. Still, many seem pleased.

Chris Baldwin, 28, buying a newspaper from Howie on a rainy Tuesday, said it's about time both nations quit bickering.

"I think it's about time nations started getting together in some kind of forward-looking endeavor instead of sitting around and thinking of how we can destroy each other," she said.

'Borrowed Numbers

MOSCOW (UPI) — American newsmen covering the Apollo-Soyuz flight kept busy Tuesday answering telephone calls for the Bolshoi Ballet school and the City Council.

Technicians who installed 18 special phones for the U.S. broadcast networks at the In-tourist Hotel press center "borrowed" the phone numbers from organizations with extra telephones or those closed for the summer months.

"I keep getting calls for the Bolshoi ballet school," said Ernest Weatherall of ABC News.
